CRIMINAL LAW 201 QUESTION PACK:

TOPIC – PERPETRATOR/ACCOMPlice:

For a person to be guilty as an accomplice, there are certain requirements which must be complied with. Name and discuss these requirements. (7)

A person is an accomplice if
1) Although he does not comply with all the requirements for liability set out in the definition of the crime, and
2) Although the conduct required for a conviction is not imputed to him in terms of the doctrine of common purpose,

He engages in conduct whereby he furthers the commission of the crime by somebody else.

Requirements for liability as an accomplice

1) Act
2) Unlawfulness
3) Intention
4) Accessory character of liability

Explain the difference between a perpetrator, an accomplice and an accessory after the fact. In your answer you must also give an example of each. (8)

A person is a perpetrator if:
(1) his conduct, the circumstances in which it takes place (including, where relevant, a particular description with which he as a person must, according to the definition of the offence, comply), and the culpability with which it is carried out are such that he satisfies all the requirements for liability contained in the definition of the offence OR
(2) if, although his own conduct does not comply with that required in the definition of the crime, he acted together with one or more persons and the conduct required for a conviction is imputed to him by virtue of the principles relating to the doctrine of common purpose.

A person is an accomplice if:
(1) although he does not comply with all the requirements for liability set out in the definition of the crime, and
(2) although the conduct required for a conviction is not imputed to him in terms of the doctrine of common purpose, he engages in conduct whereby he furthers the commission of the crime by somebody else.
A person is an accessory after the fact to the commission of a crime if, after the commission of the crime, she unlawfully and intentionally engages in conduct intended to enable the perpetrator of or accomplice to the crime to evade liability for her crime, or to facilitate such a person's evasion of liability.

A shoots Y. Y falls to the ground mortally wounded. B (who has not previously agreed with A to kill Y) appears on the scene and stabs Y with a knife. The stab wound does not hasten Y's death. Y dies as a result of the bullet wound. A needs help to dispose of the body. For this purpose, A calls in the help of C, who has agreed before the killing to assist A in the disposing of the body, and D, a friend of C's who had no such prior agreement with A. Briefly discuss the criminal liability of B, C and D.

(6)

You have to discuss the criminal liability of B, C and D in this set of facts. Allocate 2 marks for B, C and D respectively and do not waste any time in discussing the liability of A.

B is guilty of attempted murder and can be referred to as a “joiner-in” since he associated himself with others’ common purpose at a stage when Y’s lethal wound had already been inflicted, although Y was then still alive.

C may be a perpetrator or an accomplice, if his conduct, culpability and personal qualities accord with the definition of murder, he will be a co-perpetrator. He may also be an accomplice because he furthered the commission of the crime.

D is an accessory after the fact. A person is an accessory after the fact to the commission of a crime if, after the commission of the crime, he unlawfully and intentionally engages in conduct intended to enable the perpetrator of or accomplice to the crime to evade liability for the crime, or to facilitate such a person’s evasion of liability. Helping a perpetrator to dispose of the body of a person he has killed is an example of conduct that makes a person an accessory after the fact.

Discuss the liability of the participant who is commonly referred to as a “joiner-in”.

(6)

The “joiner-in” is a person

- Whose attack on Y did not hasten Y’s death
- Whose blow was administered at a time when Y was still alive
- Who did not act with a common purpose together with the other persons who also inflicted wounds on Y.

Thus, here, the person comes onto the scene AFTER the mortal wound has been inflicted on Y, but while Y is still alive and the wound inflicted on Y does NOT hasten his death PLUS this “joiner-in” has NO prior agreement with the persons who inflicted the mortal wound on Y.
X1, X2 and X3 are members of a criminal gang. Their main activity is to break into residential homes with the purpose of stealing valuable items. They usually watch the houses they intend to break into in order to establish at which time the owner is not home. One evening X1, X2 and X3 take three guns and travel by car to the house of Z. Because they have been watching Z’s house over a period of time, they know that he goes out between seven and eight o’clock every evening. They climb over the electronic gate of Z’s property at exactly fifteen minutes past seven. X1 inserts a screwdriver in the lock of the backdoor of Z’s house and breaks it open. He and his mates (X2 and X3) enter the house. Suddenly the alarm goes off. They start running away but as they approach the gate, Z (the owner of the house) enters with his car through the gate. X2 starts to panic and fires a shot at Z. Z is killed instantly. X1, X2 and X3 are all charged with murder.

You are the state prosecutor. Discuss the relevant legal principles and case law which you will rely upon in order to prove that X1, X2 and X3 are all guilty of the crime of murder.

You are required to discuss the legal principles which a state prosecutor will rely upon to prove that all the participants (X1, X2 and X3) are guilty of murder. The legal principles applied in terms of the doctrine of common purpose are relevant to this particular set of facts.

The definition of this doctrine of common purpose is the following: if two or more people, having a common purpose to commit a crime, act together in order to achieve the purpose, the acts of each of them in execution of such a purpose are imputed to the others. Therefore when the doctrine is applied, a causal link between each participant’s act and the prohibited result is NOT required. The existence of a common purpose may be proved on the basis of prior agreement, or active association and participation in a common criminal design. The state must, however, prove that each participant had the necessary intention to commit the crime of murder. The relevant case law is Safatsa; Mgedezi and Thebus.

According to the facts, there was prior agreement among the three participants to commit housebreaking. Moreover, each participant performed an act of association with the execution of the housebreaking. X2 fired the shot at Z which caused his death. The state nevertheless has to prove that X2 had the intention to kill Z before he can be convicted of the crime of murder.

As far as X1 and X3 are concerned, the state has to prove that they had foreseen the possibility that the acts of any of the participants might result in a person’s death, and that they had reconciled themselves to such a possibility.

An important fact in support of proof of the existence of dolus eventualis on the part of X1 and X3 is that they also had guns with them when they embarked upon the housebreaking. The state can therefore argue that each participant had the necessary dolus eventualis can be convicted of murder.

Name and discuss the requirements for liability as an accessory after the fact.

An accessory after the fact is someone who engages in some conduct (an act or omission) whereby the perpetrator or accomplice is assisted to evade liability. It is required that the act take place after the commission of the crime. The act must be of such a nature that it assists the perpetrator or accomplice to evade liability for his/her crime, or facilitate such a person’s evasion of liability. It is not required that the protection or assistance given be successful. The act must be unlawful, which means that there must be no justification for it. The accessory after the fact must furthermore render assistance intentionally. This means that he/she must know that the person was assisted, committed the crime. Moreover, he/she must have the intention of assisting the perpetrator (or accomplice) to evade liability or to facilitate the evasion of liability.

Similar to the accomplice, the liability of an accessory after the fact is accessory in character. This means that there can only be an accessory after the fact if somebody else committed the crime as the perpetrator. You must also briefly discuss Gani.

A, B, C and D are members of a gang known as the “Untouchables.” They are known for their drug abuse and their violent behaviour people who do not use drugs and who do not wish to take part in their activities. They live together in a remote neighbourhood where they use dagga on a daily basis. One evening while they are on their way back to their flat a nightclub, they see X, a diligent medical student, walking in the street. They try and sell dagga to X. when X refuses to either purchase it from them or speak to them, they decide amongst themselves to “fix him up”. They then start to assault X with a club each of them taking a turn to hit X with a club. X loses consciousness as a result of the attack. When they realize that X is unconscious, they decide to run away. A few minutes later Y, one of X’s previous girlfriends arrive on the scene and sees X lying on the ground. She’s been bearing a grudge on X for a long time and kicks him in the stomach. A few minutes later X dies. When A, B, C and D later arrive at their flat, they find Z, A’s girlfriend waiting for them. A tells Z about everything and gives the club with which they had assaulted X to her. Z takes the club and throws it in the gutter where it is found by the police a few days later. The post mortem performed on X reveals that X had died as a result of an injury to his head inflicted by a blunt object.

You are the state prosecutor in this case. Discuss the relevant principles and authority you would rely on to prove that A, B, C and D should be convicted in terms of the doctrine of common purpose. (12)

(Answered above in X1, X2, X3 questions)
Discuss Y and Z’s criminal liability. (8)

(Answered above in X1, X2, X3 questions)

X1, X2, X3 and X4 are all members of a criminal gang. X1, X2 and X3 suspect that X4 informs the police of their criminal activities. They decide to murder X4. X1 and X3 tell X2 to execute the murder. X2 agrees to do the job. He disguises himself by pulling a balaclava over his head and breaks into X4’s house early in the morning, when it is still dark. He finds X4 and his wife (Z) in the bedroom fast asleep. X2 fires three shots at X4 who is killed instantly. X2 sees Z, lying naked in bed next to X4. He (X2) tells her that he would like to have sexual intercourse with her. Z, who is terrified, offers no resistance while X2 has sexual intercourse with her. X2 then ties Z’s hands behind her back and locks her up in the bathroom. He leaves the house and is arrested by the police later the same day. He confesses to having murdered X4 and also tells the police of X1 and X3’s involvement in the murder.

(i) Discuss whether X1 and X3 may be convicted as perpetrators of the crime of murder. (7)

A person is a perpetrator if:

1) His conduct, the circumstances in which it takes place (including, where relevant, a particular description with which he as a person must, according to the definition of the offence, comply), and the culpability with which it is carried out are such that he satisfies all the requirements for liability contained in the definition of the offence

OR

2) If, although his own conduct does not comply with that required in the definition of the crime, he acted together with one or more persons and the conduct required for a conviction is imputed to him by virtue of the principles relating to the doctrine of common purpose.

(ii) X2 is charged with murder and rape. His defence on the rape is that Z had consented to intercourse because she did not offer any resistance. He also argues that since the intercourse was not of a violent nature, it did not constitute rape. Discuss the merits of X2’s defence. (2)

The Act provides that any person (X) who unlawfully and intentionally commits an act of sexual penetration with a complainant (Y) without his/her consent is guilty of the offence of rape. The elements of the crime are the following:

(a) sexual penetration of another person
(b) without the consent of the latter person
(c) unlawfulness and
(d) intention.
(iii) Assume that X1 and X3 had also told X2 to rape Z and that X2 consented to do it. Discuss whether X1 and X3 may be convicted as either perpetrators of rape, or accomplices to the crime of rape.

The first factor which leads the law not to recognise ostensible consent by Y as valid consent for the purposes of rape is the existence of force, intimidation or threats of harm emanating from X in respect of Y. Thus if Y ostensibly consents to sexual penetration but such consent is in fact the result of force, intimidation or threats of harm emanating from X in respect of Y, the law does not regard such consent as valid consent. Even force, intimidation or threats of harm not against Y, but against some third party, may render the ostensible consent invalid. It may even include threats against somebody whom Y has never even met.

X, P and Q decide to rob money from Y, a shopkeeper. X tells P and Q that he knows that Y does not possess a firearm. He also tells them that, although none of them has a firearm, he (X) has a toy pistol with which he plans to threaten Y. They then decide that the three of them will go to the shop and that X will point the toy pistol at Y and threaten to shoot him if he does not hand over the money in the cash register. Before going to the shop, P sees X concealing a sharp knife under his clothes. He foresees that X may use the knife in the shop and that somebody may get killed as a result. However, he does not say anything to X about the knife and voluntarily goes with the others to the shop. Q does not know that X has a knife concealed under his clothes. X, P and Q go into the shop. X points the toy pistol at Y and threatens to shoot him if he refuses to hand over the money. A scuffle ensues, and during the commotion P and Q remove the money from the cash register. In the course of the scuffle between X and Y, X draws the knife from under his clothes and stabs Y in the chest. X, P and Q run away with the money. Y dies as a result of the stab wound. X, P and Q are charged with murder and robbery. Discuss the question whether they ought to be convicted of these crimes.

X, P and Q had a common purpose to rob Y of his money. They in fact succeeded in robbing by means of their joint conduct. The cash they took is moveable, corporeal property in commercio and thus capable of being robbed. Y did not consent to the robbery. It is clear that all three of them intended to take Y's money by force and to appropriate it. They are therefore guilty of robbery.

X complies with all the requirements for murder. His act was the direct cause of Y’s death.

X’s act was unlawful. He cannot rely on any ground of justification. X had the intention to kill Y. The reasonable inference from the facts is that X took the knife with him in order to kill Y if Y refused to comply with his request to hand over the money. Are P and Q guilty of murder? They will only be guilty of murder if the doctrine of common purpose can be applied to them. If the evidence reveals that not only X but also another accused intended to kill Y, and that the other accused intended to act together with X in causing Y’s death, the other accused must also be convicted of murder, because in terms of the doctrine of common purpose X’s act of killing Y is deemed to be the act of such other accused as well. The intention or purpose which triggers the operation of common purpose is not confined to dolus directus, but includes dolus eventualis. P had dolus eventualis. He knew that X had a knife with him and foresaw the possibility that X might use the knife in the shop and that somebody might get killed as a result.

He and X had a common purpose and in terms of the operation of the doctrine of common purpose X’s act of killing Y is imputed to P. P is guilty of murder in terms of the doctrine of common purpose. Q was unaware that X had a knife with him. Neither can the inference be made that he foresaw that their conduct in the shop might result in Y’s death and that he reconciled himself to this possibility. He did not have the intention to kill Y and cannot, together with X, be held responsible for Y’s death by virtue of the doctrine of common purpose. Q is not guilty of murder. See the study guide 1.3.4.

Discuss the requirements for the liability as an accessory after the fact. (8)

Requirements for liability of accessory after the fact

1. An act: commission or omission.
2. After the commission of the crime by someone else.
3. By assisting the perpetrator or accomplice to evade liability or to facilitate his evasion.
4. In order to be liable as an accessory after the fact, a person must render assistance intentionally to somebody who has already committed the crime as a perpetrator or as an accomplice.
5. Unlawfully (thus, not ground of justification).
6. The liability of an accessory after the fact, like that of an accomplice, is accessory in character. This means, in a general rule, that there can only be an accessory after the fact if somebody else has committed the crime as a perpetrator. It also means that one cannot be an accessory after the fact to a crime committed by oneself. – Discuss the exception here created in Gani and in Johnathan which confirmed the decision and thus the Rule in Gani’s case is an exception to the rule that one cannot be an accessory after the fact to one’s own crime.
TOPIC – COMMON PURPOSE:

The most important principle relating to the doctrine of common purpose can be summarized in six propositions. Without discussing the whole doctrine, merely state these six propositions.

The most important principles relating to common purpose

1) If two or more people, having a common purpose to commit a crime, act together in order to achieve that purpose, the acts of each of them in the execution of such a purpose are imputed to the others.

2) In a charge of having committed a crime which involves the causing of a certain result (such as murder), the conduct imputed includes the causing of such result.

3) Conduct by a member of the group of persons having a common purpose which differs from the conduct envisaged in the said common purpose may not be imputed to another member of the group, unless the latter knew that such other conduct would be committed, or foresaw the possibility that it might be committed and reconciled himself to that possibility.

4) A finding that a person acted together with one or more other persons in a common purpose may be based upon proof of a prior agreement or proof of active association in the execution of the common purpose.

5) On a charge of murder the rule that liability may be based on active association applies only if the active association took place while the deceased was still alive and before a mortal wound had been inflicted by the person or persons who commenced the assault.

6) Regarding common purpose and culpable homicide – if on a charge of culpable homicide the evidence reveals that a number of persons acted with a common purpose to assault or commit robbery and that the conduct of one of them resulted in the death of the victim, the causing of the death is imputed to the other members of the gang as well, but the but the negligence of the causing of the death is not imputed.

Discuss the merit of the following statement. “The common purpose doctrine is completely unnecessary. Criminal law can do without it.” (6)

Liability on the basis of active association declared constitutional

In Thebus 2003 (CC) liability for murder on the basis of active association with the execution of a common purpose to kill was challenged on the grounds that it unjustifiably limits the constitutional right to dignity (s10), the right to freedom and security of a person (s 12) and the right of an accused person to a fair trial (s 35(3)). The Constitutional Court rejected these arguments and declared constitutional the common-law principle which requires mere active association instead of causation as a basis of liability in collaborative criminal enterprises.
The doctrine of common purpose serves vital purposes in our criminal justice system. The object of the doctrine is to criminalise collective criminal conduct and thus to satisfy the need to control crime committed in the course of joint enterprises. In crimes such as murder it is often difficult to prove that the act of each person or of a particular person in the group contributed causally to the criminal result.

Consider whether there is any justification for applying the doctrine of common purpose in our law. Illustrate by means of an example the dilemma of the state to prove causation in murder cases involving group action and explain in clear terms why the doctrine is in fact necessary in our law.

TOPIC – ATTEMPT:

(a) Discuss whether X may be convicted of attempted murder in the following instances. In your answer you must indicate which form of attempt is applicable and whether it is punishable.

(i) X intends to kill her husband Y. She puts ant poison in his food. Y eats the food, becomes sick but survives.
(ii) X intends to murder her husband Y. She puts ant poison in his food. Z the domestic servant has seen what X was doing. She warns Y that his food contains poison. As a result of the warning he refrains from eating it.
(iii) X intends to murder her husband Y. She mixes bicarbonate of soda on his food. She is under the (incorrect) impression that bicarbonate of soda is lethally poisonous substance, similar to caustic soda. Y eats the food and his health is not impaired as a result.
(iv) X intends to murder her husband Y. She puts ant poison in his food. Minutes before serving his meal, she abandons her evil plan and throws away the poisoned food.

This question relates to an attempt to commit a specific crime.

(i) Yes, X may be convicted of attempted murder. This is an example of completed attempt. X had done everything she had set out to do and her conduct reached the “commencement of the execution” stage.
(ii) Yes, X may be convicted of attempted murder. This is an example of interrupted attempt. X’s conduct is punishable because she has already performed the act of execution (putting poison in Y’s porridge”). The relevant authority is Schoombie.
(iii) Yes X may be convicted of attempted murder. This is an attempt to commit the impossible because the means cannot bring about the desired result. It is punishable because it originated from X’s mistaken view of the fact and not the law. The relevant authority is Davies.
(iv) This is an example of voluntary withdrawal. If a person voluntarily abandons his criminal plan of action at a preparatory stage, there is no punishable attempt. However, withdrawal at a stage after an “act of execution” or at any stage of the “commencement of the consumption” affords the accused no defence. It may be argued that X’s conduct is punishable as an attempted murder because she performed an act of execution. The relevant authority is Hlatwayo and Du Plessis

X wants to set a shop alight. He pours petrol around and underneath the door, so that the petrol flows into the shop. He places a tin of inflammable against the door, but before striking the match he decides not to go ahead with his plan, but to go home instead. (Note: X is not interrupted, but abandons his plan of his own accord. Can X be convicted of arson? Discuss with reference to applicable legal principles.

This is a case of voluntary withdrawal. X, of his own accord, abandons his criminal plan of action. You have to discuss voluntary withdrawal drawing upon the Hlatwayo, B and Du Plessis cases. In Hlatwayo, X was a servant who put caustic soda into her employer’s porridge, intending to poison them. She noticed that the caustic soda discoloured the porridge and threw the mixture away. She was nevertheless convicted of attempted murder. The court held that her acts had already reached the stage of consummation, and that her change of heart did not exclude her liability for attempt. In B, the Appeal Court accepted that it was held in Hlatwayo that voluntary withdrawal was not defence and that the decision was correct. In Du Plessis, the Court stated that if the change of mind occurred before the commencement of the consumption, then the person concerned cannot be found guilty of an attempt, but if it occurred after the commencement, then there is an attempt and it does not avail the person concerned to say that he changed his mind and desisted from his purpose.

If the approach in B is to be followed, X will be convicted of attempted arson. Voluntary withdrawal cannot be a defence. If the approach in Hlatwayo and Du Plessis is to be followed, one will have to determine whether X’s act has reached the stage of consummation before his decision to abandon his plan. If so, X will be guilty of attempted arson. If not, he will be acquitted. In Schoombie, the facts were similar, although X did not decide to abandon his plan, he was interrupted. The court held that X’s act had reached the stage of consummation. X is can be convicted of attempted arson, because his act had reached the stage of consummation.
Does voluntary withdrawal constitute a defence to a charge of attempt to commit a crime? Explain. (5)

It is generally accepted that there is no punishable attempt if X voluntarily abandons his criminal plan of action at a stage where his actions can only be described as preparations. (I.e. before commencement of consummation).

The question is simply whether a withdrawal after this stage (commencement of consummation) but before completion of the crime, constitutes a defense to a charge of attempt. The courts have answered this question negatively.

- In Hlatwayo, X was a servant who put caustic soda into her employers’ porridge, intending to poison them. She noticed that the caustic soda discolored the porridge, and threw the mixture away. She was nevertheless convicted of attempted murder. The court held that her acts had already reached the stage of consummation, and that her change of heart did not exclude her liability for attempt.
- In B the Appeal Court accepted that it was held in Hlatwayo that voluntary withdrawal was no defense, and that the decision was correct.
- In Du Plessis the Appeal Court stated: “if that change of mind occurred before the commencement of the consummation, then the person concerned cannot be found guilty of attempt, but if it occurred after the commencement, then there is an attempt and it does not avail the person concerned to say that he changed his mind and desisted from his purpose”.

Discuss the type of attempt known as attempt to commit the impossible, as well as the circumstances under which attempt to commit the impossible is not punishable. (in other words the exception to the rule that attempt to commit the impossible is punishable.) (10)

Attempt to commit the impossible
Subjective and objective approaches: before 1956 there was no certainty if this type of attempt was punishable or not. It was also uncertain whether deciding X’s conduct amounted to a punishable attempt, employ an objective or subjective test.

Objective test – consider the facts only from the outside, that is without considering the subjective aims which X has in mind when he performs the act.

If one follows this approach, X would never be guilty of attempt because what he is trying to do cannot physically result in the commission of an offence.

Example: X tries to sell uncut diamonds to Y. He offers a stone to Y which X thinks is an uncut diamond but it is actually a piece of worthless glass. If one applies the objective test, X cannot be convicted of an attempt to sell an uncut diamond because the sale of a piece of glass is entirely different to the sale of an uncut diamond.

Subjective test – if you apply the subjective test however, X can be convicted of attempt because according to this test what is decisive is X’s subjective state of mind, that is his belief that what he was doing was selling an uncut diamond and not a piece of glass.

The decision in Davies:
Court had to decide whether X was guilty of an attempt to commit the former crime of abortion if the foetus which he had caused to be aborted was already dead, although he had believed the foetus to be still alive. The Appeal Court adopted the subjective test and held that X was guilty of attempt. It held that X would have been guilty of attempt even if the woman had not been pregnant provided, of course, that X had believed that she was pregnant and had performed some act intending to bring about an abortion.

There are four different types of attempt which corresponds to four different reasons why X has not yet completed a crime. Answer the following questions on attempt by merely filling in the missing words

(i) In ________ attempt X does everything he can to commit the crime, but for some reason the crime is not completed.

(ii) Interrupted attempt is punishable if X’s actions have reached the stage when they are not longer merely preparatory, but acts of __________

(iii) In the case of attempt to commit the impossible it is impossible for X to commit or complete the crime either because the ________ he uses cannot bring about the desired result or because it is impossible to commit the crime in respect of the __________ of his actions.

(iv) In Du Plessis 1981 (3) SA 382 (A) the Appeal Court held that voluntary withdrawal is no defence if the withdrawal had occurred_____________________________.

Explain in which circumstances voluntary withdrawal will be a good defence on a charge of attempt to commit a crime.

It is generally accepted that there is no punishable attempt if X voluntarily abandons his criminal plan of action at a stage when his actions can only be described as preparations, in other words, before an act of execution (the so-called “commencement of the consummation”). However, if X withdraws from his criminal plan after this stage, it will be no defence on a charge on a charge of attempt to commit a crime. Whether an act of consummation has already taken place, will depend on the particular facts of each case. Examples of application of the rule are Hlatwayo and Du Plessis.

Name the four forms of attempt and explain briefly what each entails. (8)

Four different types of attempt

1) Completed attempt – X does everything he can to commit the crime, but for some reason the crime is not completed:
   - Where X fires at Y but misses
   - Where X fires at Y and strikes Y, but Y’s life is fortunately saved by timeous medical intervention

2) Interrupted attempt – X’s actions are no longer merely preparatory, but acts of execution, when they are interrupted, so the crime cannot be completed:
   - X, intending to commit arson, pours petrol onto a wooden floor but is apprehended by a policeman just before he strikes the match

3) Attempt to commit the impossible – impossible for X to commit the crime, either:
   - Because the means he uses cannot bring about the desired result, as where X, intending to murder Y, administers vinegar to him in the firm but mistaken belief that the vinegar will act as a poison and kill Y, or
   - Because it is impossible to commit the crime in respect of the particular object of his actions, as where X, intending to murder Y while he is asleep in bed, shoots him through the head, but Y has in fact died of a heart attack an hour before

4) Voluntary withdrawal – X’s actions have reached the stage of acts of execution, when X, of his own accord, abandons his criminal plan of action. For example:
   - Where, after putting poison into Y’s porridge but before giving it to Y, X has second thoughts and decides to throw the porridge away.

Discuss whether X may be convicted of attempted murder in the following instances. In your answer you must indicate which form of attempt is applicable and whether it is punishable.

(i) X intends to murder her husband Y. She puts ant poison in his food. Y eats the food, becomes sick but survives.

(ii) X intends to murder her husband Y. She puts ant poison in his food. Z, the domestic servant, has seen what X was doing. She warns Y that his food contains poison. As a result of the warning he refrains from eating it.

(iii) X intends to murder her husband Y. She mixes bicarbonate of soda in his food. She is under the (incorrect) impression that bicarbonate of soda is a lethally poisonous substance, similar to caustic soda. Y eats the food and his health is not impaired as a result.

(iv) X intends to murder Y. She puts ant poison in his food. Minutes before serving his meal, she abandons her evil plan and throws away the poisoned food.

(i) Yes, X may be convicted of attempted murder. This is an example of a completed attempt. X had done everything she set out to do and her conduct reached the “commencement of the execution” stage.

(ii) Yes, X may be convicted of attempted murder. This is an example of interrupted attempt. X’s conduct is punishable because she already performed an act of execution (putting poison in Y’s porridge). The relevant authority is Schoombie.

(iii) Yes, X may be convicted of attempted murder. This is an example of an attempt to commit the impossible because the means used cannot bring about the desired result. It is punishable because it originated from X’s mistaken view of the facts and not of the law. The relevant authority is Davies.

(iv) This is an example of voluntary withdrawal. If a person voluntarily abandons his criminal plan of action at a preparatory stage, there is no punishable attempt. However, withdrawal at a stage after an “act of execution” or at a stage after the “commencement of the consumation” affords the accused no defence. It may be argued that X’s conduct is punishable as an attempted murder because she performed an act of execution. The relevant authority is Hlatwayo.

X meets Y in a chat room on the Internet. They realise that they are the same age and that they share the same interests. They fall in love and decide to meet in real life. X knows that paedophiles are prosecuted if they use chat rooms to set up meetings with young children; X is under the (incorrect) impression that it is illegal to meet any chat-room partner in real life. However, he is so infatuated with Y that he decides to continue with the arrangements. Has X committed any crime?

The question in this set of facts is whether or not X is guilty of attempt to do the impossible. In Davies 1956 (3) SA 52(A) it was held that attempt to do the impossible is punishable. However, the court formulated two exceptions to this rule. The second exception applies in this case. If what X intended to do was not a crime, but by mistake of law he thought that his act was criminal; his act will not constitute an attempt to commit a crime. Attempt to commit a putative crime is not punishable. In this instance X thought it was a crime to meet chat-room partners in real life, which it was not. He is therefore not guilty of attempt to commit the impossible.
TOPIC – INCITEMENT & CONSPIRACY:

There are rumours that X is dissatisfied with a certain politician, Z, and that X would gladly arrange that someone kill Z. Y is a detective who investigates the matter. Y goes to X and pretends to be a person who is also very dissatisfied with Z. X tells Y that he would like to see Z being killed. Y did not influence X to do this. Y pretends to be willing to commit the murder if X would give him R5000. X promises to pay him the amount if he commits the murder. At that stage Y arrests X. Discuss, with reference to authority, the question whether on the grounds of these facts X has committed incitement to murder. (4)

Incitement to commit a crime is punishable in terms of section 18(2) of Act 17 of 1956.
X ought to be charged with and convicted of incitement only if there is no proof that the crime to which he incited another has indeed been committed. No one ever charged with plain incitement – must be incitement to commit a crime. Purpose of the crime is to discourage people from seeking to influence others to commit crimes. A person may be convicted of incitement even though there is no proof that he had persuaded the incitee to commit the crime. No element of unwillingness on part of Y needed for X to commit the crime.

A brief discussion should include the case Nkosiyana. The facts in the present question are to a large extent based on the facts and judgment in this case. X has indeed committed incitement to murder. The fact that Y was a police official who never intended to kill Z does not offer X any defence.

“X can only be guilty of incitement the incitement contains an element of persuasion.” Do you agree with this statement? Discuss with reference to Nkosiyana 1966 (4) SA 655 (A) (5)

In Nkosiyana X had suggested to Y that they murder Mr. Kaiser Matanzima of the Transkei. However, Y was in fact a policeman who suspected X of trying to murder Mr. Matanzima and wanted to trap X. X was unaware of the fact that Y was a policeman. X was charged with incitement to commit murder. The Appeal Court held that the fact that Y was a policeman who at no time was susceptible to persuasion did not stand in the way of a conviction for incitement. Incitement can therefore be committed even in respect of a police trap in which the police officer involved has no intention of ever committing the actual crime, but who simply wants to trap the inciter.

Someone who seeks to influence the mind of another to the commission of a crime is an inciter. Whether Y is capable of being persuaded is immaterial. The incitement can occur explicitly or impliedly.
If it does not come to the attention of $Y$, $X$ cannot be convicted of incitement but may be of attempted incitement.

Discuss the crime of conspiracy in terms of section 18(2) (a) of the Riotous Assemblies Act 17 of 1956. (4)

Conspiracy to commit a crime is punishable in terms of section 18(2) of Act 17 of 1956.
Our courts have indicated that this should only be used if there is no proof that the envisaged crime was in fact committed. No one is ever charged with plain “conspiracy”, it needs to be conspiracy to commit a crime, like murder / assault. The act of conspiracy consists in entering into an agreement to commit a crime.
While parties still negotiating, there is no conspiracy yet.
The crime is completed the moment the parties have come to an agreement and it is not necessary for the state to prove the commission of any further acts in execution of the conspiracy.
They need not agree on the exact manner how crime to be committed.
The intention requirement consists in the intention to conspire as well as the intention to commit a crime or to further its commission. Someone convicted of this crime is punished with the same punishment as the punishment prescribed for the commission of the actual crime envisaged.

TOPIC – PUBLIC VIOLENCE:

Smokers United, a group of cigarette smokers, is very upset about the rising prices of cigarettes. They decide to march to the office of the Minister of Finance to hand over a petition from smokers all over South Africa complaining about the rising prices of cigarettes and the manner in which smokers are being treated since the new legislation on smoking has come into operation. They do not have permission to march, but decide to continue nevertheless. The police request them to disperse in a peaceful manner but they refuse.
Some of the protesters throw stones at the police and some try to enter the office of the Minister by breaking down the door. The police throw teargas at them and the protestors run away. The police succeed in arresting five of the protesters. Can these five people be convicted of any crime?

Yes, they can be convicted of the crime of public violence:
They participated in the protest.
They disturbed public peace and order.
It was a joint action. Public peace and order was disturbed by a number of persons acting in concert. These people acted with a common purpose.
Once it has been established that the accused knowingly participated with the aim of threatening public peace and order, it is not necessary for the police to prove the specific acts that were committed by each of the accused.
The acts were accompanied by violence. Note, however, that the crime is committed even if there is no actual disturbance of the public peace and order or no actual infringement of the rights of another. It is sufficient if the action is aimed at these purposes. See the study guide 4.2.2.

TOPIC – PERJURY:

Discuss the crime known as “statutory perjury” that is the contravention of section 319(3) of Act 56 of 1955. (8)

Statutory perjury:

Here the State needs to prove that X on 2 different occasions made 2 statements under oath and these statements conflict with each other.

The difference between common law and statutory perjury are:

a) in CL perjury, only one statement and in SP, two statements

b) in CL perjury crime can only be committed during the course of a legal proceeding; in SP neither of the statements need be made in the course of a legal proceeding.

Definition

Perjury at common law consists in the unlawful, intentional making of a false declaration under oath (or in a form allowed by law to be substituted for an oath) in the course of a legal proceeding.

Discuss the liability of a newspaper editor for the crime of contempt of court in the form of commentary in the form on pending cases. (4)

Definition

Contempt of court consists in the unlawful and intentional

1) Violation of the dignity, repute or authority of a judicial body or a judicial officer in his judicial capacity, or

2) The publication of information or comment concerning a pending judicial proceeding, which has the tendency to influence the outcome of the proceeding or to interfere with the administration of justice in that proceeding

Intent

In general intention is an essential element of the crime except in cases where the editor of a newspaper is charged with this crime on the ground of the publication in his newspaper of information concerning a pending case, which tends to influence the outcome of the case. Culpability in the form of negligence will be sufficient to establish contempt of court in such circumstances. However, remarks in a newspaper article, for example, must be read in context to establish the presence of intent. Liability of a newspaper editor: in Harber the Appellate Division held that it is not necessary to prove intention in these cases, since, in cases such as these the culpability may consist or either intention r negligence. The editor would be negligent if the reasonable person in his position could foresee that the information which he publishes might deal with a pending case or that it might scandalize the court.
Define perjury at common law. (3)

Perjury at common law consists in the unlawful, intentional making of a false declaration under oath (or in a form allowed by law to be substituted for an oath) in the course of a legal proceeding.

One of the elements of common-law perjury is that the false declaration must be made in the course of legal proceedings. Discuss what is meant by “In the course of legal proceedings.” (5)

Perjury at common law consists in the unlawful, intentional making of a false declaration under oath (or in a form allowed by law to be substituted for an oath) in the course of a legal proceeding. A distinction is drawn between contempt in facie curiae and contempt ex facie curiae. In facie curiae literally means “in the face of the court”; and contempt in this form is contempt in the presence of the judicial officer during a session of the court. In Nyalanbisa the court held that merely falling asleep in court does not necessarily amount to contempt in facie curiae, since it merely amounted to “a trivial breach of court etiquette”.

TOPIC – CONTEMPT OF COURT:

Discuss the form of contempt of court known as “contempt in facie curiae.” In your answer you need not also give a definition of contempt of court. (6)

In facie curiae “in the face of the court; in the open court” – is contempt in the presence of the judicial officer during a session of the court. Contempt of court in facie curiae takes place when X behaves in such a way in court as to violate the dignity or authority of the judge or magistrate, for example by singing loudly in court. The court has the power to evict the wrongdoer summarily and sentence him. This is done to maintain the dignity of the court; but must be applied with great circumspection.

Only give the definition of ONE of the following crimes: Contempt of court OR Public Violence (3)

Contempt of court consists in the unlawful and intentional

1) Violation of the dignity, repute or authority of a judicial body or a judicial officer in his judicial capacity, or

2) The publication of information or comment concerning a pending judicial proceeding, which has the tendency to influence the outcome of the proceeding or to interfere with the administration of justice in that proceeding.
Public violence is the unlawful and intentional performance of an act or acts by a number of persons, which assumes serious proportions and is intended to disturb the public peace and order by violent means, or to infringe the rights of another.

Name the elements of ONE of the following crimes:

(i) Perjury at common law

Elements of the crime:
1) An act
2) Performed by a number of persons
3) Which assumes serious proportions
4) Which is unlawful
5) Intentional

(ii) Contempt of court

The elements of the crime are
1) Any act which
2) Defeats or obstructs the course of justice
3) In an unlawful and
4) Intentional manner

Briefly discuss contempt ex facie curiae in the form of scandalising the court.

Ex facie curiae occurs through actions or remarks out of court, and can take a variety of forms:

• Scandalizing the court by the publication of allegations which, objectively speaking, are likely to bring judges or magistrates or the administration of justice through the courts generally into contempt, or unjustly to cast suspicion on the administration of justice
• The failure to comply with a court order
TOPIC – CORRUPTION:

Discuss the elements of ‘acceptance’ (the element of the act) in respect of the crime or corruption committed by the recipient. (5)

General crime of corruption: the crime committed by the recipient

Elements of the crime:
1) The acceptance by Y
2) Of gratification
3) In order to act in a certain way
4) Unlawfulness
5) Intention

1. The acceptance (element of an act)

The legislature employs two ways to broaden the meaning of “accept”:

- The Act also provides (in s 3(a)) for certain conduct by Y which precedes the acceptance, namely
  - To agree to accept a gratification or
  - To offer to accept

The Act provides that the words or expressions “accept”, “agree to accept” and “offer to accept” as used in the Act, also have the following broader meanings:

1) To demand, ask for, seek, request, solicit, receive or obtain gratification
2) To agree to perform the acts named under (1)
3) To offer to perform the acts named under (1)

The following considerations afford Y no defense:

1) The fact that Y did not accept the gratification “directly”, but only “indirectly”. Y does not have to accept the gratification personally. The fact that Y makes use of a middle man to accept the gratification affords her no defense.
2) The fact that Y did not in actual fact later perform the act which X had induced her to perform. Therefore, the crime is completed even if Y has not yet done what she had undertaken to do, expressly or implicitly.
3) The fact that the corrupt activity between X and Y was unsuccessful. This consideration affords neither X nor Y a defense.
4) For the purpose of liability, it is irrelevant that the state or the private enterprise concerned with the transaction did not suffer prejudice as a result of X or Y’s conduct.
5) The fact that Y accepted the gratification but that she, in actual fact, did not have the power or right to do what X wished her to do, affords neither X nor Y a defense.
TOPIC – EXTORTION:

Fully discuss the crime of extortion. In your answer you must inter alia give the definition of the crime, identify the elements of the crime, and discuss the elements of the crime. (9)

Definition: is the unlawful and intentional acquisition of a benefit from some other person by applying pressure to that person which induces her to part with the benefit.

Elements:
1. the acquisition of
2. a benefit
3. by applying pressure
4. a causal link between pressure and acquiring benefit (NB)
5. unlawfulness and
6. intention.

The perpetrator:
Crime can be committed by anyone, not just an official.

Exertion of pressure:
X MUST acquire the benefit by applying pressure and Y must give way under the stress of the pressure.
Pressure can be threats, inspiring fear and intimidation (thus robbery and extortion can overlap).
Threats can be in the negative, like threatening to not return something borrowed, it can be threats of defamation, or employment benefits etc.

The benefit:
For long time there was uncertainty regarding whether or not the benefit had to be one of a patrimonial nature.
In Von Mollendorff the AD limited it to one of a patrimonial nature.
But the legislature intervened with the General Law Amendment Act which stated that any advantage was enough. In J, Y was threatened by X that unless he had sexual intercourse with him, he’d show nude photos of her to her parents. Court found him guilty.
The crime is not committed until the benefit has been handed to X.

Causation:
Just like in robbery (see later and remember the connection!) there must be a causal link between the pressure and the acquisition of the benefit. If the benefit was handed over not due to the pressure but because of a trap set for X by Y, X is only guilty of attempted extortion.

Unlawfulness:
Obviously the pressure must be exerted unlawfully, but this does not mean that if Y is threatened with something which X is entitled to, the treat can never be sufficient for extortion.
It’s irregular if police official states he’ll prosecute unless Y pays him a sum of money.

Intention:
X must intend her words to give fear, intend to acquire the benefit realizing he’s not entitled to it. Motive irrelevant.

Discuss the requirement of causation in the crime of extortion.

Definition: is the unlawful and intentional acquisition of a benefit from some other person by applying pressure to that person which induces her to part with the benefit.

Causation:
Just like in robbery (see later and remember the connection!) there must be a causal link between the pressure and the acquisition of the benefit. If the benefit was handed over not due to the pressure but because of a trap set for X by Y, X is only guilty of attempted extortion.

Discuss the requirement of unlawfulness in the crime of extortion.

Definition: is the unlawful and intentional acquisition of a benefit from some other person by applying pressure to that person which induces her to part with the benefit.

Unlawfulness:
Obviously the pressure must be exerted unlawfully, but this does not mean that if Y is threatened with something which X is entitled to, the threat can never be sufficient for extortion.

It’s irregular if police official states he’ll prosecute unless Y pays him a sum of money.

Y, a married woman, has a secret affair with a colleague. Y and her lover go away for a weekend and are spotted together by X, one of her husband’s friends. X phones Y the following Monday and tells Y that he, X, will tell Y’s husband if Y does not have sexual intercourse with him (X). Y has sexual intercourse with X. Does X commit extortion? Discuss

Definition: is the unlawful and intentional acquisition of a benefit from some other person by applying pressure to that person which induces her to part with the benefit.

Elements:
1. the acquisition of
2. a benefit
3. by applying pressure
4. a causal link between pressure and acquiring benefit (NB)
5. unlawfulness
6. intention.
The perpetrator:
Crime can be committed by anyone, not just an official.

Exertion of pressure:
X MUST acquire the benefit by applying pressure and Y must give way under the stress of the pressure.
Pressure can be threats, inspiring fear and intimidation (thus robbery and extortion can overlap).
Threats can be in the negative, like threatening to not return something borrowed, it can be threats of defamiation, or employment benefits etc.

The benefit:
For long time there was uncertainty regarding whether or not the benefit had to be one of a patrimonial nature.
In Von Mollendorff the AD limited it to one of a patrimonial nature.
But the legislature intervened with the General Law Amendment Act which stated that any advantage was enough. In J, Y was threatened by X that unless he had sexual intercourse with him, he’d show nude photos of her to her parents. Court found him guilty.
The crime is not committed until the benefit has been handed to X.

Causation:
Just like in robbery (see later and remember the connection!) there must be a causal link between the pressure and the acquisition of the benefit.
If the benefit was handed over not due to the pressure but because of a trap set for X by Y, X is only guilty of attempted extortion.

Unlawfulness:
Obviously the pressure must be exerted unlawfully, but this does not mean that if Y is threatened with something which X is entitled to, the threat can never be sufficient for extortion.
It’s irregular if police official states he’ll prosecute unless Y pays him a sum of money.

Intention:
X must intend her words to give fear, intend to acquire the benefit realizing he’s not entitled to it. Motive irrelevant.

Discuss the question whether the crime of extortion is committed by X in the following circumstances:

(i) X threatens to sue Y if he (Y) does not pay back the money he owes her. Y does in fact owe X money and has already, for a considerable time, refrained from paying his debts on demands by X. Y, is afraid of the legal costs that may incur if he does not pay the money, immediately he pays his debts to X.
(ii) X tells Y that she will hire somebody to break into his house and steal his property if he does not pay back the money that he owes her. Y, being afraid, pays her immediately.
(iii) X is Y’s boss at work. She tells Y that he will not get a promotion unless he has intercourse with her. Y refuses and lays a charge at the police.

(1) X cannot be convicted of extortion since her conduct is not unlawful. It is not against the legal convictions of society to obtain a perfectly legitimate advantage (payment of a debt) by means of a threat of legal action.

(2) X can be convicted of extortion. It is undoubtedly against the legal convictions of society to use this type of pressure (i.e. to threaten to hire somebody to break into someone else’s house and violate his property rights) to obtain a benefit. Although the benefit obtained is legitimate, the illegitimate pressure used to obtain the benefit makes X’s conduct unlawful.

(3) X may only be convicted of attempted extortion. Extortion is materially defined crime. This means that there must be a causal link between the pressure and the acquisition of the benefit, and that the crime is not completed unless the perpetrator has received the benefit. Because X has not yet obtained the “advantage”, they may not be convicted of the completed crime but only of an attempt to commit extortion.

Y, a married woman who teaches at a university, has a love affair with one of her students; X. X is an amateur photographer in possession of photographs which depict Y in various naked positions. Y decides to save her marriage and ends the affair. X is shattered and threatens to show the photographs to her husband unless she provides him with the questions for the examination. Y agrees and provides X with the questions. Has X committed a crime?

X commits extortion. X acquired a benefit by unlawfully exerting pressure on Y. Pressure may take the form of threats, as in this instance. The benefit may be of a patrimonial or nonpatrimonial nature. The benefit extorted in this instance is the questions in the examination paper, which is non-patrimonial. Before 1989 there were conflicting decisions on the question whether or not the benefit in extortion should be limited to patrimonial benefit. Since the promulgation of section 1 of the General Law Amendment Act 139 of 1992, any advantage or benefit can be extorted. Note that if Y had not yet handed over the benefit to X, it would amount only to attempted extortion.
TOPIC – DRUG OFFENCES:

Z possesses a quantity of mandrax tablets. She goes to her friend X and asks whether she may leave the mandrax tablets in X’s care while she (Z) goes overseas, because she is afraid the police may find the tablets in her (Z’s) house while she is overseas. X agrees. X and Z place the tablets in a box under the floor boards of X’s house. While Z is overseas, the police search X’s house and find the mandrax tablets. X is charged with having unlawfully possessed the tablets. Her defence is that she never intended to use the tablets herself, but only allowed Z to store the tablets temporarily in her (X’s) house. Can X be convicted by having unlawfully possessed the drugs (mandrax tablets)? Discuss. In your answer you must focus on the concept of possession in the crime of possession of drugs. (6)

This question deals with the unlawful possession of drugs. X can be convicted of having possessed the tablets. The fact that she did not intend to use the tablets herself, but only stored them temporarily on Z’s behalf, does not afford her a defence. The term “possession is used in the Act is not confined to possession civilis (possession as an owner) but includes possession naturalis (possession on behalf of someone else).

Section 4 of the drugs and Drugs Trafficking Act 140 of 1992 provides that it is an offence for any person unlawfully and intentionally to use or have in his/her possession any dependence-producing substances or any dangerous dependence-producing substances or any undesirable dependence-producing substance. Discuss the act required for this offence. In other words, discuss the meaning of “to use” and “to have in possession”.

The use or possession of drugs
Definition
It is an offence for any person unlawfully and intentionally to use or have in her possession any dependence-producing substance or any dangerous dependence-producing substance or any undesirable dependence-producing substance.

The act:
Possession or use:

a. Use
Smoking, inhalation, injection or ingestion of drugs will amount to use of the drug. It is not clear why the legislature prescribed not only the possession of, but also the use of drugs, since any instance of use of a drug involves also its possession and as such amounts to an offence under the Act. It is probably for this reason that in practice it seldom happens that X is accused only of using a drug.

b. Possession:

(i) General meaning of “possession”:
In law, possession consists of two elements, namely
- A physical or corporeal element (referred to as corpus or detentio)
- A mental element, that is X’s intention (the animus)

The physical element - appropriate degree of physical control over the thing. The precise degree of control required depends upon the nature of the article and the way in which control is ordinarily exercised over such a type of article. The control may be actual or constructive. Constructive control means control through somebody else, such as a representative or servant. The mental element (animus) of possession relates to the intention with which somebody exercises control over an article. In this respect there may be more than one possibility:

1. The mental element (animus) of possession
   - X may exercise control over the article as if she is the owner of the article. This type of possession is possession in the ordinary juridical meaning of the term. It is also known as possessio civilis. This is the narrow meaning of possession. X may exercise control over the article with the intention of keeping it for somebody else. This type of possession is known as possessio naturalis. This is the broader type of possession.

(ii) Meaning of “possession” in the Act:

Section 1 of the Act provides that the word “possess” as used in the Act includes
- Keeping
- Storing
- Having in custody or under control or supervision.

This provision is wide enough to cover situations in which a person has the custody over an article not in order to use it herself, but on behalf of somebody else, as where she looks after it for somebody else. “Includes” means that the meaning ascribed to “possession in this section (i.e. keeping, storing etc) is not the only meaning that the word can have in the Act. Apart from the meaning ascribed to the word in section 1, the word also has another meaning. This other meaning can be nothing else than possessio civilis described above.

If the state charges X with having possessed a drug, there are two ways in which the state may prove the element of possession.

The first is by proving that X exercised control over the drug as an owner that is for herself, as opposed to exercising control over the drug on behalf of somebody else. This type of possession (i.e. possession as an owner) is possessio civilis. The second way of proving possession is by proving that although X did not exercise control over it as an owner (i.e. to use it for herself), she nevertheless kept it for or on behalf of somebody else. This type of possession is possessio naturalis.

X, a horticulturist, is in serious financial trouble. Her friend, who regularly smokes cannabis, convinces her that there is a market for good quality cannabis. He also tells her that there is a movement towards the decriminalisation of the possession of cannabis. She decides to take her chances and grow and sell cannabis to solve her financial difficulties. It turns out that her cannabis is of an extremely high quality and that she would have to sell only one harvest to be financially solvent again. When the cannabis is harvested and ready for distribution, the police find 20 kg cannabis in her garage while she is out looking for a buyer. Has X committed a crime?
X commits the crime of dealing in drugs. Cannabis qualifies as a dependence-producing substance. “Deal in” is defined in the Drugs and Drugs Trafficking Act 140 of 1992 as including the performance of any act in connection with the cultivation of drugs. X’s acts comply with the definition. She grew the cannabis and harvested it. The fact that it is a large quantity of cannabis is a further indication that she intended to deal in cannabis.

X cannot rely on any ground of justification. The fact that she wanted to overcome her financial difficulties does not offer her a defence. She also fulfils the requirement of intention as she decided to continue with her plan despite the fact that she knew that the possession of cannabis has not yet been decriminalised.

TOPIC – POINTING OF A FIREARM

Name and discuss the elements of the crime of pointing of a firearm in contravention of section 120(6) of the Firearms Control Act of 2000.

Definition

a) any firearm, an antique firearm or an airgun, whether or not it is loaded or capable of being discharged, at any other person, without good reason to do so; or

b) Anything which is likely to lead a person to believe that it is a firearm, an antique firearm or an airgun at any other person, without good reason to do so.

Elements of the offence

1) the pointing of
2) a firearm or other article
3) at any person
4) unlawfully and
5) intentionally

The act: “To point ... at”

The state need not prove any of the following:
1. that X fired a shot;
2. that the firearm or article was loaded; or
3. That the firearm or article was of such a nature that it could be discharged, in other words, that it was capable of firing a shot.

It is simply the pointing of the firearm

The expression “point at” is capable of being interpreted in more than one way:

- Firstly, it may be interpreted narrowly, as meaning the pointing of the firearm at Y in such a way that, if discharged, the bullet would hit Y (this interpretation was adopted in Van Zyl).

Critical Law Studies cc ©
Secondly, it may be interpreted broadly, as meaning the directing of the firearm towards Y in such a way that, if it were discharged, the bullet would either strike Y or pass in her immediate vicinity.

A firearm, et cetera:
The effect of the words “or anything which is likely to lead to a person to believe that it is a firearm etc” in the definition of this offence is that X may commit the offence even if she points a toy pistol at Y, provided the toy pistol is such that it is likely to lead to a person to believe that it is a real pistol.

“Any other person”
The firearm must be pointed at a person, so for example pointing at an animal cannot lead to a conviction.

Unlawfulness:
The words “without good reason to do so” in the definition are wide enough to incorporate the grounds of justification. For example, she points a firearm at another while acting in private defence, or if X is a police officer lawfully affecting an arrest.

Intention:
Intention is not expressly required. It is highly unlikely that the legislature intended to create a strict liability offence. It is also unlikely that it could have intended mere negligence to be a sufficient form of culpability. The words “point at” prima facie denote intentional behaviour. It is submitted that the form of culpability required for a conviction under the subsection is intention.

This means that X must know that:
1. What she is handling is an object described in the act.
2. She is pointing the weapon at another person – thus if she thinks that she is pointing it at an animal she lacks intention.
3. There is no “good reason” for her conduct and that it is unlawful, that is, not covered by a ground of justification.

Mere negligence is not sufficient. It is submitted that, according to general principles, intention in the form of dolus eventualis is sufficient.

Section 120(6) of the Firearms Control Act 60 of 2000 provides that it is an offence to point a firearm at any person unlawfully and intentionally. Discuss the requirement of an act (“to ______ at”) in this offence. (5)

To point a firearm is defined as:
a) any firearm, an antique firearm or an airgun, whether or not it is loaded or capable of being discharged, at any other person, without good reason to do so; or
b) Anything which is likely to lead a person to believe that it is a firearm, an antique firearm or an airgun at any other person, without good reason to do so.

The act: “To point ... at”
The state need not prove any of the following:
1. that X fired a shot;
2. that the firearm or article was loaded; or
3. That the firearm or article was of such a nature that it could be discharged, in other words, that it was capable of firing a shot.

The expression “point at” is capable of being interpreted in more than one way:
Firstly, it may be interpreted narrowly, as meaning the pointing of the firearm at Y in such a way that, if discharged, the bullet would hit Y (this interpretation was adopted in Van Zyl).
Secondly, it may be interpreted broadly, as meaning the directing of the firearm towards Y in such a way that, if it were discharged, the bullet would either strike Y or pass in her immediate vicinity.

TOPIC – RAPE:
(a) X’s wife, Y, is very unwilling to allow him to have sexual intercourse with her. In an attempt to persuade her to consent to intercourse, X tells her that if she allows him to have intercourse with him, he will buy her a fur coat. On the ground of representation by X, Y consents, and the two of them have sexual intercourse. Thereafter X refuses to buy Y a fur coat. Y is furious and goes to the police, where she lays a charge of rape against X. Discuss the question whether X has committed the crime. (5)

The question deals more specifically with the requirement for the crime complainant should not have consented to intercourse, and hereunder the question t which extent a mistake by the complainant relating to the true facts surrounding the intercourse affects the validity of consent given by intercourse.
Fraud (by X) which vitiates consent (in other words, which renders consent invalid) is fraud relating to the identity of the man or the nature if the act. Misrepresentation of any other circumstance does not affect the validity of the consent. This is the reason why, in the facts of this case, the misrepresentation or fraud by X does not vitiate the consent given by Y. Y’s consent to intercourse is therefore deemed by law to be valid, with the result that X is not guilty of rape.
The fact that X and Y were married is irrelevant, because it is not possible for a husband to commit this crime with his wife.

X, a male prisoner, coerces Y, another male prisoner, to subject himself to sexual intercourse per anum by X. In other words X has anal intercourse with Y. Y is not a willing party to the act. With reference to the latest case law, discuss the question which crime if any, X commits. (4)

X has committed indecent assault. The Act repeals the common-law crime of indecent assault and replaces it with new statutory offences of sexual assault, compelled sexual assault as well as compelled self-sexual assault. These various offences relate to the non-consensual sexual violation of another person either by the perpetrator himself or herself, or by another person who is compelled by the perpetrator to perform the prohibited act. The compelled person may also be the complainant himself or herself.

A person (X) who unlawfully and intentionally sexually violates a complainant (Y) without the consent of Y; is guilty of the offence of sexual assault.

A person (X) who unlawfully and intentionally inspires the belief in a complainant (Y) that Y will be sexually violated; is guilty of the offence of sexual assault.

The elements of the crime are the following:
(a) an act of sexual violation of another person
(b) without the consent of the latter person
(c) unlawfulness and
(d) intention; or

Merely state in one sentence of which crime (if any) X may be convicted of in the following instances:

(i) X, a thirty-year-old school teacher, has sexual intercourse with one of her students, a fifteen year old boy, with his consent.
(ii) X, a twenty-year-old male, has sexual intercourse with a thirteen-year-old prostitute with her consent. X has never been charged with any sexual crimes.
(iii) X, a thirty-year-old male, meets Y, a twenty-five year old female, for the first time in a bar. He wants to have sexual intercourse with her but he knows she will not give her consent. He puts three sleeping tablets in Y’s alcoholic drink. Y falls asleep. X takes her (Y) to his car and has sexual intercourse with her while she is asleep.
(iv) X and Y have a quarrel. X becomes very angry, draws a knife and tells Y that he is going to stab him in the chest. Y believes that X will carry out his threat. He (Y) is afraid and runs away. (4)

(i) X may be convicted of a contravention of section 14(3) of the Sexual Offences Act.
(ii) X cannot be convicted of any crime.
(iii) X may be convicted of rape.
(iv) X may be convicted of assault.

Rape is committed only if the women has not consented to intercourse. Sometimes, if a man has intercourse with a women, there is no express refusal to intercourse by the women, but the law nevertheless accepts that there has been no valid consent which was ostensibly been given, is not deemed by the law to be valid consent. Name these six instances. (6)

(i) by fear induced by violence or threats.
(ii) where someone has intercourse with a sleeping woman.
(iii) when a woman is in a state of intoxication, or whose senses are benumbed as a result of drug-taking or hypnosis.
(iv) if as a result of a mental defect she is so devoid of reason that she is incapable of giving consent.
(v) when it is obtained by fraud regarding the identity of the man or the nature of the act she ‘agrees’ to.
(vi) if a girl is irrebuttably presumed to be incapable of consenting because she is under 12 years of age.

X’s wife Y is very unwilling to allow him to have sexual intercourse with her. In an attempt to persuade her to consent to have intercourse with him, X promises Y that he will buy her a new pair of designer jeans if she consents to intercourse. On the ground of this representation by X, Y consents to intercourse, and the two of them have sexual intercourse. Thereafter, however, X refuses to buy Y a pair of designer jeans. Y is furious and goes to the police and lays a charge of rape against X. Discuss the question whether X has committed a crime. (5)

This question deals with rape. In this set of facts consent was obtained by fraud. This type of consent, in certain circumstance, deemed by law to be invalid. Fraud which vitiates (invalidates) consent is fraud in respect of the identity of the man (where the woman is led to believe that the man is her husband) or in respect of the nature of the act to which she “agrees” (when is persuaded that the act is not sexual intercourse, but some medical operation). Misrepresentation of any other circumstance does not affect the validity of consent. Consent is deemed to be valid where the woman is misled, not about the nature of the act of sexual intercourse, but about the results which will follow on such intercourse. In this question, X is not guilty of rape since the woman’s consent is deemed by the law to be valid consent. The fact that they were married is irrelevant since it is possible in South Africa law for a husband to rape his wife.

Y, a thirty-year old woman, desperately wants to have a child with her husband, Z. she has tried all kinds of fertility products but cannot fall pregnant. Y consults a gynaecologist, Dr X, who tells her that by having sex with him (X) will improve her fertility. Because X is a doctor, Y believes him and has sexual intercourse with him. However her fertility is not cured. Y is furious and lays a charge of rape against X. Discuss the question whether X may be convicted of rape. (6)

Circumstances in respect of which Y does not voluntarily or without coercion agree to an act of sexual penetration include the following:
Where Y submits or is subjected to such a sexual act as a result of
(a) the use of force or intimidation by X against Y or Z (a third person) or W (another person) or against the property of Y, Z or W or a threat of harm by X against Y, Z or W or against the property of Y, Z or W.
(b) where there is an abuse of power or authority by X to the extent that Y is inhibited from indicating his or her unwillingness or resistance to the sexual act, or unwillingness to participate in such a sexual act;
(c) where the sexual act is committed under false pretences or by fraudulent means, including where Y is led to believe by X that
(i) Y is committing such a sexual act with a particular person who is in fact a different person; or
(ii) such a sexual act is something other than that act; or
(d) where Y is incapable in law of appreciating the nature of the sexual act, including where Y is, at the time of the commission of such sexual act:
(i) asleep;
(ii) unconscious;
(iii) in an altered state of consciousness, including under the influence of any medicine, drug, alcohol or other substance, to the extent that Y’s consciousness or judgment is adversely affected;
(iv) a child under the age of 12 years; or
(v) a person who is mentally disabled.

For consent to succeed as a defence it must have been given consciously and voluntarily, either expressly or tacitly, by a person who has the mental ability to understand what he or she is consenting to, and the consent must be based on a true knowledge of the material facts relating to the act.

X, a male prisoner, coerces Y, another male prisoner, to subject himself to sexual intercourse per annum by X. In other words, X has anal intercourse with Y. Y is not a willing party to the act. With reference to the latest case law, discuss the question which crime (if any) X commits. (6)

X may be convicted of indecent assault. Indecent assault is an act which consists at least in the touching of another’s body, unlawfully with the intention, which includes an intention to act indecently. You had to discuss the Constitutional Court decision in National Coalition for Gay and Lesbian Equality v Minister of Justice. Before this case was decided, the conduct described in the set of fact was punishable as the common-law crime of sodomy. However, the crime of sodomy (which targeted non-consensual and intercourse) was declared unconstitutional in the abovementioned case on various grounds; inter alia that the existence of the crime is incompatible with the right to equality; the right to dignity and the right to privacy. However, as pointed out by the court, non-consensual anal intercourse may still be punished as indecent assault or assault with the intent to cause grievous bodily harm.
TOPIC – MURDER:

Section 51 of the Criminal Law Amendment Act 105 of 1997 provides for certain mandatory minimum sentences. Merely name the circumstances in which a court is bound in terms of section 51, to sentence a person found guilty of murder to imprisonment.

In Dodo (CC) the unconstitutionality of section 51 was rejected and the courts are now bound to convict a person found guilty of murder to imprisonment for life, in the following circumstances:

1. If the murder was planned or premeditated
2. If Y, the person murdered, was a law enforcement officer
3. If Y was given evidence in a trial for a serious offence (as described in the criminal procedure act)
4. If X, the murderer, in the course of committing rape
5. If X committed the murder in the course of committing a robbery with aggravating circumstances
6. If the murder was committed by a group of persons acting in the execution of a common purpose

TOPIC – ASSAULT:

In the crime of assault the act may take two different forms, namely firstly the application, and secondly the inspiring of fear in the victim that force is immediately to be applied to him or her. Discuss only the second form in which the crime can be committed.

Definition: A person commits assault if he/she unlawfully and intentionally

1) Applies force, directly or indirectly, to the person of another, or
2) Inspires a belief in another person that force is immediately to be applied to her.

Ways in which the crime can be committed:
First it may consist in the application of force, Secondly it may consist in inspiring fear in Y, and more particularly a belief in Y, that a force is immediately to be applied to him. This is subdivided into direct and indirect application of force.

Inspiring fear of immediate force
This is an unusual way of committing of the crime – it departs from the lay persons’ conception of what constitutes assault. To hold someone liable for assault in this form the following rules must apply:

1) The threat must be one of violence to the person of Y. thus a threat by X to damage Y's property is not sufficient.
2) The threat must be one of immediate violence. Thus a threat by X to cause Y some physical harm in the future would not be sufficient.
3) The threat must be one of unlawful violence. If X is entitled by law to threaten Y with violence should Y not behave in a certain manner (such as to leave X’s house), she does not commit assault. Thus X may always threaten Y to use force to defend herself or her property.

4) Y (the complainant) must subjectively believe that X intends to carry out her threat and that she is able to do so. The essence of this type of assault is the intentional inculcation of fear into Y. If Y does not in fact fear the threat, no assault is committed.

Discuss the requirement of intention in the crime of assault. (10)

Intention:

1) The intention may take form of either direct or indirect intention or dolus eventualis. An example of an assault in which X had intention in the form of dolus eventualis is the following: X throws a stone at birds. There are many children about. She foresees the possibility of something going wrong and reconciles with this fact and throws the stone and misses the bird, hitting a child.

2) In cases of assault which take place by means of the inspiring of fear (as opposed to the application of fear) X must know that her conduct will inspire fear in Y. This means that X must believe that her threats will inspire fear in Y.

3) According to the ordinary principles relating to intention, X’s intention must incorporate knowledge of unlawfulness. This means that X must know that her conduct is not covered by a general ground of justification. Thus if X believes that she is entitled to act in private defence because she fears an imminent unlawful attack by Y upon herself, whereas she is in fact not entitled to private defence because Y does not intend to attack her, she lacks the necessary intention to assault.

4) According to Chretien 1981 (1) SA 1097 (A), intoxication may lead to X’s lacking the intention to assault, in which case X must not be found guilty.

5) It seems doubtful whether our courts would be prepared to recognise provocation as a ground for excluding the intention requirement for ordinary assault. (They do recognise that provocation may exclude the “special intention” requirement for the qualified assaults, such as assault with intent to do grievous bodily harm.)

Inspiring fear or a belief in Y that force is immediately to be applied to her also constitutes an act of assault. Discuss the crime of assault in the form of inspiring fear or a belief in Y that force is immediately to be applied to her.

Name without any discussion the different ways in which assault may be committed. (5)

Definition: A person commits assault if he/she unlawfully and intentionally:

1) Applies force, directly or indirectly, to the person of another, or
2) Inspires a belief in another person that force is immediately to be applied to her.
Ways in which the crime can be committed:
First it may consist in the application of force, Secondly it may consist in inspiring fear in Y, and more particularly a belief in Y, that a force is immediately to be applied to him. This is subdivided into direct and indirect application of force.

TOPIC – DEFAMATION:

Merely name without any discussion, the elements of criminal defamation. (4)

The elements of the crime are:
1) The publication
2) Of defamatory matter
3) Which is serious, and
4) Unlawful, and
5) Intentional

TOPIC – CRIMEN INIURIA:

Define the crime crimen iniuria. (2)

Definition: The unlawful, intentional and serious infringement of the dignity or privacy of another.

Elements of the crime:
1. The infringement
2. Of another's dignity or privacy
3. Which is serious
4. Unlawfulness
5. Intentional

Discuss the requirement for crimen iniuria that the violation of dignity or privacy must be serious. Your answer must include a discussion of the factors that may play a role in deciding whether the behaviour was serious. (10)

Violation of dignity or privacy must be serious

In order to constitute crimen iniuria, the violation must be serious and not of a trifling nature.

Although vague it is nevertheless necessary. If every swear word or scornful remark could easily result in a criminal prosecution, the courts would be inundated. In Walton, “in the ordinary hurly burly of everyday life a man must be expected to endure minor or trivial insults to his dignity.”
Whether the words or behaviour is serious enough to qualify, depends on the circumstance of each case. Factors such as the following may play a role in deciding whether the behaviour was serious.

1) Ages of the parties, the younger the person the more serious the crime can be viewed.
2) Gender of the parties, the law will always try to protect the more sensitive female.
3) Nature of the act, some acts are notoriously more serious than others such as indecent exposure and “peeping toms”.
4) Relationship between the parties, the insult is more serious when it comes from a stranger than from a boyfriend in a domestic dispute.
5) Persistence of the conduct, this can be the border between non-punishable conduct and crimen iniuriae, to stare at a woman is not as injurious as to follow her around and keep staring.
6) Publicity, the degree of impairment of dignity may be greater where X’s words are heard by many people.
7) Sexual Impropriety, If X makes unwanted overtures towards Y which contain an element of sexual impropriety, the conduct will be viewed in a more serious light than when the overtures do not contain such an element.
8) Y’s public standing, although the dignity of all people is protected by the crime, a person of greater public standing or public office may have more to lose. Or if a police officer is sworn at while performing his duty it may be taken more seriously than a person randomly swearing at another.

TOPIC – KIDNAPPING:

Discuss the crime of Kidnapping. (5)

Definition: unlawfully and intentionally depriving a person of his freedom of movement and/or if such a person is a child, the custodians of their control over the child.

The elements of the crime are:

1) The deprivation
2) Of freedom of movement (or parental control)
3) Unlawfully, and
4) Intentionally.

The crime is against a person’s freedom of movement. The interest protected is the liberty of another. A person cannot commit kidnapping in respect of his own child.

Merely name the interests protected by the crime of kidnapping. (2)
The interests protected by the crime of kidnapping is the freedom of movement of person or, if the person is a child, the control of the parent or guardian over the child.

TOPIC – THEFT:

(a) X takes his car to a garage to be serviced. He signs an agreement between him and the garage, which stipulates that he will only be entitled to get his car back after he has paid the costs of servicing the car. When he returns in the afternoon to fetch his car, he discovers the costs of the service are very high. X does not have enough money to pay the account. Accordingly the garage refuses to give the car back to X. the garage also retains the key of the car. That night X sneaks stealthily to the backyard of the garage, where his motor is parked, manages to open the door of the car, and tampers with the electrical wiring beneath the steering column of the car in order to start the engine. His intention is to drive away with the car. While X is still busy trying to get the car going, a police official discovers him and arrests him. X is charged with theft of the car. At his trial his attorney advances the following three grounds why X should not be convicted of theft.

(i) X cannot be convicted of theft because one cannot steal one’s own property.

(ii) X cannot be convicted of theft because at the time he was arrested, he had not yet succeeded in excluding the lawful possessor of the car (i.e. the garage) from the possession of the car.

(iii) Because there was undisputed evidence by X that his plan was to sell his car the very day he succeeded in retrieving it and not to appropriate the proceeds of the sale for himself but to give it away to a charitable organisation, he lacked the intention to steal.

Discuss the question whether each of the three arguments of X’s attorney is correct. It is not necessary to give a definition of theft in your answer. (8)

X’s attorney’s first argument is incorrect. It is indeed possible to “steal one’s own property.” The form of theft is known as arrogation of possession. The facts in this question are derived in part from those in the case of Roberts.

X’s attorney’s second argument is correct. A person commits the completed crime of theft if two things happen; firstly, X must deprive the lawful owner, or person in possession of the property, of the property and then secondly X must exercise the rights of an owner in respect of the property. In this set of facts X acted as if he was entitled to the property but at the time of his arrest he had not yet succeeded in actually depriving the person entitled to the property of it. This means the negative component of the concept of appropriation has not been complied with. This component would have been complied with only if X had been succeeded in getting the car started and driving away with it. X is accordingly guilty of attempted theft of the car, but not yet the completed theft of it.

X’s attorney’s third argument is incorrect. This argument is based upon the supposition that a person can be guilty of theft only if he or she had the intention of deriving some gain or benefits for him- or herself from the acquisition to handling of the property. Proof of such and intention is, in fact, not required for a conviction of theft.

Theft can only be committed in respect of certain types of property. Discuss the requirements with which property must comply in order to qualify as property capable of being stolen. (8)

1. The property must be movable. An example of immovable property is a farm. Therefore, one cannot steal a part of a farm by moving its beacons or fences. If part of an immovable property is separated from the whole, it qualifies as something that can be stolen; examples in this respect are mealie-cobs separated from a mealie-plant.

2. The property must be corporeal. This means that it must be an independent part of corporeal nature. In principle, one must be able to see or touch it. One cannot therefore steal an idea. The rule that only corporeal property is capable of being stolen should, however, be viewed circumspectly. This requirement has already been considerably watered down in our law. There are however two exceptions:

   1) An owner may steal her own property from somebody else who is in lawful possession of it (such as a pledge). (This form of theft is known as arrogation of possession). Yet, in reality it is not the property that is stolen. While it is true that here the act is directed at a corporeal thing, what is infringed is the possessor’s right of retention, which is a right and therefore something incorporeal.

   2) In the case of certain types of conduct recognised by the courts as theft, namely the theft of money through the “manipulation” of cheques, banking accounts, et cetera, and the object stolen is not the crime, as it is not a corporeal thing rather something called “credit” or an “abstract sum of money”.

3. The property must be available in commerce. (In commercio). Property is available in commerce if it is capable of being sold, exchanged or pledged, or generally of being privately owned. The following types of property are not capable of forming part of commercial dealings and are therefore not susceptible to theft:
(a) Res communes, property belonging to everyone like the air.
(b) Res derelictae, property abandoned by its owners with the intention of getting rid of it. This does not include money someone drops as they had no intention to get rid of it.
(c) Res nullius, property belonging to no-one but can be subject of private ownership such as wild animals. However animals in a zoo for instance can be stolen.

4. The property must belong to someone else. One can therefore not steal one’s own property. The exception to the rule is the unlawful arrogation of the possession of a thing. (Furtum possessionis).

Define theft.

Definition: theft is the unlawful, intentional appropriation of movable, corporeal property which:
1) Belongs to, and in the possession of another
2) Belongs to another, but is in the perpetrators possession,
3) Belongs to the perpetrator, but is in another’s possession and such other person has the right to possess it which legally prevails against the perpetrator’s own right of possession

There must be intention to misappropriate and permanently to deprive the person entitled to the possession of the property.

X’s lawn-mower is out of order. He takes his neighbour Y’s lawn mower without his (Y’s) consent. X mows his lawn with Y’s lawn-mower. He plans to put it back while Y is at work. In the meantime he stores the lawn-mower on the porch at the back of his (X’s) house. During the night, the lawn-mower is stolen from X’s premises. X is charged with theft. At the trial his attorney argues that X cannot be convicted of theft because he did not have the intention to appropriate. Explain whether this argument is correct.

This question focuses on the culpability requirement of the crime of theft. You must consider whether X’s defence, namely that he cannot be convicted of the crime because he did not have intention to appropriate is a valid defence. Firstly you must explain the meaning of the concept “an intention to appropriate”. The concept rests on two states of mind: (1) an intention to exercise the rights of an owner in respect of the property, as well as (2) an intention to exclude the owner permanently from exercising the rights over his property. Secondly, you had to explain that X did not have the state of mind described in (2) by using the lawnmower, X exercised the rights of an owner over the property. However, he did not intend to exclude the owner from exercising his rights over the property permanently. X can accordingly not be convicted of theft because he lacked the intention. The relevant authority is Sibiya 1955 (4) SA 274 (A). However you could also argue that, by leaving the lawnmower outside on the porch, X had foreseen the possibility that it might be stolen and reconciled himself with this possibility. By not storing it in a safe place, X acted indifferently with regard to Y’s property and did not care whether would find it again. Therefore X adopted an intention that was the opposite of the intention of returning the lawnmower to Y, namely dolus eventualis to deprive Y of his property permanently.

Name the three different forms of theft, and give a brief description of each. (3)

1) The removal of property. Here X removes someone else’s property.
   Without consent.
2) Embezzlement. X appropriates another’s property which she already has in her possession.
3) Arrogation of possession. X removes her own property which is in the lawful possession of another (such as a pledge) and appropriates it.

In general, property is capable of being stolen only if it is corporeal.
Discuss this requirement as well as the exceptions to this requirement.
(3)

The property must be corporeal. This means that it must be an independent part of corporeal nature. In principle, one must be able to see or touch it. One cannot therefore steal an idea. The rule that only corporeal property is capable of being stolen should, however, be viewed circumspectly. This requirement has already been considerably watered down in our law. There are however two exceptions:

1) An owner may steal her own property from somebody else who is in lawful possession of it (such as a pledge). (This form of theft is known as arrogation of possession). Yet, in reality it is not the property that is stolen. While it is true that here the act is directed at a corporeal thing, what is infringed is the possessor’s right of retention, which is a right and therefore something incorporeal.

2) In the case of certain types of conduct recognised by the courts as theft, namely the theft of money through the “manipulation” of cheques, banking accounts, et cetera, and the object stolen is not the crime, as it is not a corporeal thing rather something called “credit” or an “abstract sum of money”.

Y wants to go on holiday to Baghdad in Iraq for a few weeks. Before he departs, he requests X, his neighbour, to look after his house and pets while he is away. X agrees and visits Y’s house everyday while Y is away.
Y has a very expensive rear-projector television set in his bedroom. X desires the television set but cannot afford to buy one for himself. X takes Y’s television set to his house and watches it. X intends to return the television set before Y returns. Y and his wife decide to cut their holiday short after the United States invasion of Iraq. Y arrives home with his wife earlier than expected and finds that his television set is missing. He discovers the television set in X’s house. Y is furious and lays a charge of theft at the police station. In the light of relevant case law, discuss whether X may be convicted of the theft of the television set. (6)

This deals with the crime of theft. The crux of the question deals with the requirement of the intention to steal. You have to explain that the intention required is the intention to appropriate. The two components of the concept of appropriation are: (i) an intention to exercise the rights of an owner in respect of the property, and (ii) an intention to exclude the owner from exercising their rights over their property. In other words to deprive them of their property.

It is very important to mention that the intention to appropriate includes an intention to permanently to deprive the owner of their property. The important case which must be referred to is Sibiya. In this case it was decided that the, if an accused intends to return the property to the owner. They do not commit theft.

Generally speaking, theft can be committed only in respect of a certain type of property. Name the requirements the requirements property must comply with in order to be capable of being stolen. Also name the exceptions to these requirements. (6)

You merely had to name and not discuss the requirements that the property must comply with in order to be capable of being stolen. You also had to name the exceptions to these requirements which are as follows:

- The property must be movable
- It must be corporeal, but there are two exceptions to this requirement, namely where arrogation of possession occurs (a possessor’s incorporeal right of retention is infringed by the owner) when there is theft of money through manipulation of cheques, banking accounts funds, et cetera (where the object stolen is an incorporeal thing, i.e. credit)
- It must be available in commerce
- It must belong to somebody else, except in cases of arrogation of possession.

X sees Y’s car parked outside Y’s house with the keys inside the car. He calls his friend Z, and the two of them take a joyride with the car, intending to return the car. The car is involved in an accident. X and Z are frightened and abandon the car. The car is stolen by an unidentified person and is never found again. X and Z are charged with theft. Discuss the question whether X and Z may be convicted of theft. (8)

By taking Y’s car without his consent, X performed an unlawful act of appropriation. The required intention for theft is the intention to appropriate the property. The intention to appropriate has two components:
(i) A positive component, namely the intention to exercise the rights of the owner over the property.
(ii) A negative component, namely the intention to permanently exclude the owner from exercising his rights over the property.

If X removed Y’s car intending to use it temporarily but before he returns the car, it collides with some object and X abandons it without notifying Y of the situation, he may be guilty of theft. X abandons the car without any intention of notifying Y or returning the car. He foresees the possibility that Y may lose the car and behaves recklessly towards this possibility. This amounts to intention in the form of dolus eventualis to deprive Y permanently of his car. The relevant case law is either the Laforte or Sibiya decision. X may therefore be convicted of theft.

Can a person commit theft in respect of property belonging to himself? Discuss in detail.

The property must belong to someone else. One can therefore not steal one’s own property. The exception to the rule is the unlawful arrogation of the possession of a thing. (Furtum possessionis).

Arrogation of possession (furtum possessionis)

Today furtum usus is no longer regarded as a crime, furtum possessionis is. In the case the owner steals her own thing by removing it from the possession of a person who has the right to possess it which legally prevails over the owner’s right of possession. The pledge and somebody who has the right of retention are examples of persons who enjoy such a preferential right of possession.

The crime of theft may be committed in a variety of ways. Briefly explain (in one sentence) the following ways in which the crime may be committed:

(i) Removal of property
(ii) Embezzlement
(iii) The unlawful arrogation of possession

(Answered above)

X, a well-known socialite, borrows her friend’s (Y’s) diamond brooch to wear to a charity ball. At the ball an impromptu raffle is held. X offers the brooch as a prize. She also buys a raffle ticket. Z wins the brooch. Y wants her brooch back but X tells her that Z won it in the raffle. Does X commit any crime?

X commits the crime of theft in the form of embezzlement. X commits an act of appropriation in respect of property that she already has in her possession. X has the brooch in her possession when she offers it as a prize. She complies with the negative component of the act of appropriation. By offering the brooch as a prize in the raffle, she also complies with the positive component of the act. She exercises the rights of an owner in respect of the brooch. She has excluded Y from control of her property. X also has the intention to appropriate Y’s property. X has the intention to exercise the rights of an owner in respect of the property as well as the intention to deprive Y of the property. The fact that she buys a raffle ticket does not negate her intention to deprive Y of her property. The chances are slim that she will win the brooch back. She cannot argue that she had the intention to retrieve the brooch and return it to Y, because she knew or at least foresaw that her chances of retrieving the brooch were relatively small. X therefore commits theft in the form of embezzlement.

TOPIC – ROBBERY:

Can X be convicted of robbery in the following circumstances? Start by writing down “yes” (X can be convicted) or “no” (X cannot be convicted) and then substantiate your answer. Refer to case law where applicable.

(i) X unlawfully and intentionally threatens to hit Y with a stick unless Y hands over his cellular phone. X does not apply force to the body of Y. Y hands over the phone as a result of the threats.

(ii) Y goes on a hiking expedition along the coast. X appears out of nowhere and unlawfully and intentionally threatens to throw Y’s keys into the sea unless she hands over her backpack. Y hands over her backpack as a result of the threats.

(iii) X, a gang leader, unlawfully and intentionally threatens to kill Y unless Y gives him the name of a certain police informant. Y gives X the name as a result of the threats.

(iv) Y receives a tip-off that a certain X is planning to rob his shop. Y reports this to the police. The police set a trap for X. X shows up at the shop, and warns Y that unless he hands over all the money in the till, he will be shot. In accordance with the pre-arranged plan he made with the police which was aimed at securing X’s arrest, Y hands over the money.

(v) With a quick, unexpected manoeuvre, X snatches Y’s handbag, which she is clutching under her arm, and runs away with it without Y offering or being able to offer resistance.

(i) YES – threat of violence

(ii) NO – extortion, no threat of violence

(iii) YES – threat of violence

(iv) YES – threat of violence

(v) YES – Sithole, it is robbery
X grabs Y’s handbag in a sudden and unexpected way, and runs with it? Does X commit robbery? Discuss. (7)

Definition: Robbery consists of in theft of property by unlawfully and intentionally using
1. Violence to take the property from another or
2. Threats of violence to induce the other person to take the property

The “bag-snatching” cases:
Does X commit robbery if with a quick unexpected manoeuvre he snatches Y’s bag and runs away without Y being able to offer any resistance she falls to the ground and her bag is stolen?

In Sithole, the Natal court held that the handbag snatcher does in fact commit robbery. The reason for this is force is used to remove the handbag which the court believes is sufficient enough for a robbery. Especially if Y does offer resistance as there will be a greater chance of violence.

Discuss briefly whether X can be convicted of robbery in the following circumstances. In your answer you must first state whether your answer is “yes” or “no” and thereafter, in one sentence, substantiate your answer.

(i) Y stops his motor car at a red robot. X who pretends to sell watches at the robot, points a gun at Y and tells him he (X) will kill Y if he does not hand over his cell phone and wallet. Y speeds off without handing over the objects to X.

(ii) Y stops at a red robot. X jumps into the back of the car and puts a gun against Y’s head. He tells Y to take him to the nearest ATM machine; to hand over his ATM card and to give him (X) the pin number of his (Y’s) account. Y follows X’s instructions and drops him off at the nearest ATM machine. Y fears for his life and drives away. X withdraws money from Y’s account in his absence. (6)

(i) No. robbery requires theft of property by means of violence or a threat of violence. Because the wallet had not yet been handed over to X, he can only be convicted of attempted robbery.

(ii) Yes. It is not required that the property be on the victim’s person or in his/her presence. The relevant authority is Ex Parte Minister van Justisie: in re S v Seekoei.
TOPIC – FRAUD:

Discuss the requirement of a misrepresentation in fraud. (4)

Definition: Fraud is the unlawful and intentional making of a misrepresentation which causes actual prejudice or which is potentially prejudicial.

The Misrepresentation:
The first requirement of fraud is that there must be a misrepresentation. This is the conduct requirement of the crime. There must be a deception by means of a falsehood. X must, in other words represent to Y that a fact or set of facts exists when in fact it doesn’t.

1) Form that misrepresentation may take: generally it takes the form of writing or speech, conduct other than writing or speech may be sufficient, such as the nod of a head signifying consent.

2) The misrepresentation may be either tacit or implied.

3) The misrepresentation may be made by either a commission (positive act) or an omission. Most cases the misrepresentation is made by means of a commisio. A mere omission by X to disclose a fact may amount to the making of a misrepresentation, if there is a legal duty on X to disclose the fact. The legal duty may arise –
   a) Specifically by statute. E.g., in terms of section 137(a) of the Insolvency Act 24 of 1936, an insolvent person is obliged to disclose the fact that she is insolvent to any person from whom she receives credit amounting to more than R20.
   b) From considerations other than the terms of a statute, such as where a court is of the opinion that X should have acted positively to remove a misconception which would, in the natural course of events, have existed in Y’s mind.

4) It has sometimes been stated (e.g. in Larkins) that a mere false promise as to the future cannot be equated to a misrepresentation. From this it follows that the misrepresentation must refer to an existing state of affairs or to some past event, but not to some future event. A person writing out a cheque and handing it over as payment generally implies they have the money to cover the cheque.

X writes letters to a number of wealthy people to make financial contributions to an orphanage in a very poor neighbourhood. X provides an account number for the purpose specified. A few people react to the request and pay money into the account. It turns out X is a con man who obtains money for himself under the pretext that he raises money for deserving causes. Discuss whether X may be convicted of:
   (i) Fraud
   (ii) Theft by false pretences. (9)

This question focuses on the requirements for the crime of fraud as well as the requirements for the theft by false pretences.
(i) You have to give a definition of the crime of fraud. Fraud is the unlawful and intentional making of a misrepresentation which causes actual prejudice or which is potentially prejudicial. X made a misrepresentation to the people. He represented to them that of facts existed that in truth did not exist. The misrepresentation was made expressly and by means of a positive act. Although only potential prejudice is required for the crime of fraud, X’s misrepresentation resulted in actual prejudice. The victims suffer financial loss by paying money into the bank account.

You then have to consider whether X had the required intention to commit the crime. The state of mind required for the crime of fraud is to defraud. X knew the facts that he represented to the people were untrue and he knew that people might suffer actual or potential prejudice as a result of his misrepresentation. Moreover, his intention was to induce the people to embark on a course of action prejudicial to themselves. X may accordingly be convicted of fraud.

(ii) X also commits theft by false pretences, which is a form of theft, as well as a form of fraud. A person commits this crime if he unlawfully and intentionally obtains movable, corporeal property belonging to another, with the consent from the person whom he obtains it, such consent being given as a result of a misrepresentation by the person committing the offence, and appropriates it. The victims consent is not regarded as valid consent because it is induced by fraud. X obtained credit from the people by means of a fraudulent misrepresentation. From the facts it also appears that he appropriated it.

In the crime of fraud, the misrepresentation can be made by either a commisio (positive act) or an ommisio (omission to act) Discuss. (5)

The Misrepresentation:

The first requirement of fraud is that there must be a misrepresentation. This is the conduct requirement of the crime. There must be a deception by means of a falsehood. X must, in other words represent to Y that a fact or set of facts exists when in fact it doesn’t.

1) Form that misrepresentation may take: generally it takes the form of writing or speech, conduct other than writing or speech may be sufficient, such as the nod of a head signifying consent.

2) The misrepresentation may be either tacit or implied.

3) The misrepresentation may be made by either a commission (positive act) or an omission. Most cases the misrepresentation is made by means of a commisio. A mere omission by X to disclose a fact may amount to the making of a misrepresentation, if there is a legal duty on X to disclose the fact. The legal duty may arise –
c) Specifically by statute. E.g., in terms of section 137(a) of the Insolvency Act 24 of 1936, an insolvent person is obliged to disclose the fact that she is insolvent to any person from whom she receives credit amounting to more than R20.

d) From considerations other than the terms of a statute, such as where a court is of the opinion that X should have acted positively to remove a misconception which would, in the natural course of events, have existed in Y’s mind.

4) It has sometimes been stated (e.g. in Larkins) that a mere false promise as to the future cannot be equated to a misrepresentation. From this it follows that the misrepresentation must refer to an existing state of affairs or to some past event, but not to some future event. A person writing out a cheque and handing it over as payment generally implies they have the money to cover the cheque.

Discuss the intention required for the crime of fraud

X’s intent must relate to all the requirements of the crime. This means apart from the intention relating to unlawfulness (i.e. awareness of unlawfulness) X’s intent must cover the following:

a) The intent relating to the requirement of misrepresentation means that X must know or at least foresee the possibility, that the representation she is making is untrue.

b) The intent relating to the requirement of prejudice means that X must know, or at least foresee the possibility, that Y or some other party may suffer actual or potential prejudice as a result of the misrepresentation.

✓ There is a distinction between an intention to deceive and an intention to defraud.

• The intention to deceive means an intention to make somebody believe that something, that is false.
• The intention to defraud means the intention to induce somebody to embark on a course which is prejudicial to her.

Discuss the requirement of prejudice in the crime of fraud. (9)

The misrepresentation must cause actual prejudice or be potentially prejudicial. Mere lying is not fraud. The lie must bring about some sort of harm. The harm is called Prejudice.

Actual prejudice is not required.
Mere potential prejudice is sufficient to warrant a conviction. Nor is it required that. The prejudice need not only be of a patrimonial nature.

Prejudice may be either actual or potential
Even if the prosecution has not proved that the misrepresentation resulted in actual prejudice, X may still be convicted if there was potential prejudicial misrepresentation.

X insures all her belongings with an insurance company. She then claims for certain items saying that they had been stolen when in actual fact they had not. The insurance company finds out that X has lied and doesn’t pay, even though no monetary loss has occurred the insurance company can still sue X for the potential prejudice they have suffered.

What is the meaning of “potential prejudice”?

1) Potential prejudice means that the misrepresentation looked at objectively, involved some risk of prejudice, or that it was likely to cause prejudice.

2) “Likely to prejudice” does not mean that there should be a probability of prejudice, but only that there should be possibility of prejudice.

3) On the other hand, the possibility should not be too remote or fanciful.

4) The prejudice need not be suffered by the representee (the party whom the misrepresentation is directed); prejudice to a third party, or even to the state or the community in general, is sufficient.

5) It is irrelevant that Y, the victim, was not misled by the misrepresentation; it is the representation’s potential which is crucial. Thus it doesn’t matter if X’s scheme is successful or whether Y reacts to the misrepresentation.

6) Since potential prejudice is sufficient, it is unnecessary to require a causal connection between the misrepresentation and the prejudice. Even where there is no causal connection, there may still be fraud, provided that no one can say that the misrepresentation holds the potential for prejudice.

X, a businessman, decides to insure the contents of his house with “Bettersure”, an insurance company for the amount of R200 000. One evening, X decides to store all the items with his friend Y. the next day X falsely submits an insurance claim at “Bettersure” to the effect that his house was robbed the previous evening and that all the items therein are stolen. Y finds out about X’s criminal activities and informs “Bettersure” about it. The insurance company refuses to pay X’s claim. Discuss whether X may be convicted of fraud.

This question deals with the element of prejudice, specifically potential prejudice with regards to fraud. In this case, the insurance company runs the risk of suffering potential prejudice if they adhere to X’s claim. What does potential prejudice mean?

- Potential prejudice means that the misrepresentation looked at objectively, involved some risk of prejudice, or that it was likely to prejudice.
- “Likely to prejudice” does not mean that there should be a probability of prejudice, but only that there should be a possibility of prejudice.
• The possibility should not be too remote or fanciful.
• The prejudice need not be suffered by the representee – prejudice by a 3rd party is sufficient.
• It is not relevant that the victim was not misled by the misrepresentation.
• No causal connection between the misrepresentation and the prejudice is required. Here we awarded a maximum of 4 marks for supplying information regarding potential prejudice.
X can therefore be convicted of fraud due to the fact that he had the intention to defraud which could have been potentially prejudicial to the insurance company.

Define the crime of forgery and uttering. (3)

Forgery definition: unlawfully and intentionally making a false document to the actual/potential prejudice of another.

Elements:
1. making a document
2. which is false
3. prejudice
4. unlawfulness and
5. Intention, which includes intention to defraud.

Uttering definition: unlawfully and intentionally passing off a false document as to the actual or potential prejudice of another.

Y wants to buy a car. He goes to a second hand car dealer (X) who shows him a 1994 model ford car which, according to the dealer is in excellent condition. The speedometer on the car shows that it has only done 50 000 kilometres. Y buys the car. After three weeks the car’s engine seizes.
Y takes it to a mechanic who informs him that it is more likely that the car has done 300 000 kilometre. He tells Y that somebody had most probably tampered with the speedometer. Y goes to the police and lays a charge of fraud against X, the car dealer. Discuss the elements of crime that the state must prove in order for X to be convicted of fraud. (8)

Elements of the crime
1) Misrepresentation
2) Which causes or may cause prejudice, and which is
3) Unlawful and
4) intentional

The Misrepresentation

The first requirement of fraud is that there must be a misrepresentation.
This is the conduct requirement of the crime. There must be a deception by means of a falsehood. X must, in other words represent to Y that a fact or set of facts exists when in fact it doesn’t.
1) Form that misrepresentation may take: generally it takes the form of writing or speech, conduct other than writing or speech may be sufficient, such as the nod of a head signifying consent.

2) The misrepresentation may be either tacit or implied.

3) The misrepresentation may be made by either a commission (positive act) or an omission. Most cases the misrepresentation is made by means of a commisio. A mere omission by X to disclose a fact may amount to the making of a misrepresentation, if there is a legal duty on X to disclose the fact. The legal duty may arise –
   e) Specifically by statute. E.g., in terms of section 137(a) of the Insolvency Act 24 of 1936, an insolvent person is obliged to disclose the fact that she is insolvent to any person from whom she receives credit amounting to more than R20.
   f) From considerations other than the terms of a statute, such as where a court is of the opinion that X should have acted positively to remove a misconception which would, in the natural course of events, have existed in Y’s mind.

4) It has sometimes been stated (e.g. in Larkins) that a mere false promise as to the future cannot be equated to a misrepresentation. From this it follows that the misrepresentation must refer to an existing state of affairs or to some past event, but not to some future event. A person writing out a cheque and handing it over as payment generally implies they have the money to cover the cheque.

The Prejudice

The misrepresentation must cause actual prejudice or be potentially prejudicial. Mere lying is not fraud. The lie must bring about some sort of harm. The harm is called Prejudice. Actual prejudice is not required, mere potential prejudice is sufficient to warrant a conviction. Nor is it required that the prejudice need not only be of a patrimonial nature.

- Prejudice may proprietary if it has to do with a person’s property or material possessions. In other instances of prejudice the prejudice is non-proprietary in nature, for example:
  1) Writing an examination for another
  2) Submitting a forged driving license to a prosecutor during the trial of a traffic offence
  3) Making a false entry into a register reflecting the sale of liquor – due to the state control on the sale of liquor.
  4) Laying a false charge with the police.

Unlawfulness

Compulsion or obedience to orders may operate as grounds of justification. The fact that Y is aware of the falsehood is no defence, as we saw above. As any fraudulent misrepresentation is obviously unlawful, unlawfulness does not play an important role in this crime.
Intent

X's intent must relate to all the requirements of the crime. This means apart from the intention relating to unlawfulness (i.e. awareness of unlawfulness) X's intent must cover the following:

a) The intent relating to the requirement of misrepresentation means that X must know or at least foresee the possibility, that the representation she is making is untrue.

b) The intent relating to the requirement of prejudice means that X must know, or at least foresee the possibility, that Y may suffer actual or potential prejudice as a result of the misrepresentation or falsehood.

▶ There is a distinction between an intention to deceive and an intention to defraud.

  • The intention to deceive means an intention to make somebody believe that something, that is false.
  • The intention to defraud means the intention to induce somebody to embark on a course which is prejudicial to her.

TOPIC – MALICIOUS INJURY TO PROPERTY:

Define the crime of malicious injury to property. (3)

Definition: Malicious injury to property consists in unlawful and intentionally

1. Damaging property belonging to another person or
2. Damaging one's own insured property with the intention of claiming the value of the property from the insurer.

TOPIC – HOUSEBREAKING:

Discuss the intention requirement in the crime of housebreaking with intent to commit a crime. (5)

Definition: Housebreaking with intent to commit a crime consists in unlawfully and intentionally breaking into and entering a building or structure, with the intention of committing some crime in it.

Intention

Two components:

1. X must have the intention of unlawfully breaking into and entering the house or structure.
2. X must also have the intention of committing some other crime inside, such as robbery for example.
Housebreaking without such an intention may, depending on the circumstances, be punishable as malicious injury to property.

Name and explain the two components of the intention required for the crime of housebreaking.

Two components:
1. X must have the intention of unlawfully breaking into and entering the house or structure. Such intention will be absent if, for example, she believes that she is breaking into her own house, or that she is committing the act of housebreaking to save someone inside or with the owners consent.
2. X must also have the intention of committing some other crime inside, such as robbery for example.

Housebreaking without such an intention may, depending on the circumstances, be punishable as malicious injury to property.

Indicate with a mere “yes” or “no” whether the following acts qualify as an act of “breaking” as required for the crime of housebreaking with the intent to commit a crime.

(i) X unlocks a door without causing any damage.
(ii) X pushes open a partially closed door.
(iii) X stretches his/her hand through an open window in order to steal a radio.
(iv) X opens a door which is unlocked.
(v) X walks through an open door but breaks a window in order to exit the building.

(i) Yes
(ii) Yes
(iii) No
(iv) Yes
(v) No

Discuss the element of ‘breaking’ in respect of the crime of housebreaking with the intent to commit a crime.

All that is required for an act to amount to a breaking is the removal or displacement of an obstacle which bars entry to the building and which forms part of the building itself.

The following acts do not amount to a “breaking in”:
• walking through an open door into a building
• climbing through an open window into a building
• stretching one’s arm through an open hole in wall of a building
The most obvious act which qualifies as breaking in is physically breaking a door, window wall or roof. The following also qualifies as breaking:
• merely pushing open a closed (even though not locked) door or window
• merely pushing open a partially closed door or window.
It is not a requirement for liability for this crime that actual damage be inflicted to the building or structure.

Indicate whether the following statements with regard to fraud are correct or incorrect:
(a) The misrepresentation can be either express or implied.
(b) The misrepresentation may be made by a positive act only.
(c) If X misrepresents to her insurance company that her insured camera has been stolen and the company reimburses her for the camera, the company will have suffered actual prejudice if the allegation that the camera had been stolen was false.
(d) “Likely to prejudice “does not mean that there should merely be a possibility of prejudice; it means that there must be a probability of prejudice.
(e) The prejudice must be suffered by the representee only.
(f) Laying a false charge with, or making a false statement to, the police is an example of the causing of non-patrimonial prejudice.

(a) Correct.
(b) Incorrect.
(c) Correct.
(d) Incorrect.
(e) Incorrect.
(f) Correct.
FILL-IN SECTION:

Write down the missing phrases.

(i) The crime crimen iniuria is committed by infringing a person’s dignity or_________
(ii) Forgery is a form of the crime of ________________
(iii) Theft by false pretence can be regarded both as a form of _________ and as a form of________.
(iv) Malicious damage to property consists of the unlawfully and intentionally damaging property belonging to another person, or damaging ________
(v) In Sithole 1981 (1) SA 1186 (N) the court held that the handbag snatcher commits the crime of________
(vi) X commits theft in the form of _________ if she appropriates Y’s property which is already in her (X’s) possession.
(vii) The intention required for housebreaking comprises an intention of ________ as well as an intention of ________________.

(10)

(i) privacy
(ii) fraud
(iii) theft; fraud
(iv) ones own insured property with the intention of claiming the value of the property from the insurer.
(v) robbery
(vi) embezzlement
(vii) intention of unlawfully breaking into and entering the building structure and the intention of committing some other crime inside the building or structure.

Fill in the missing word or words to complete the following phrases.

(i) In the case of criminal defamation, violations of a person’s _______ or _______ are made punishable.
(ii) The elements of kidnapping are the ______ of ____________ which takes place unlawfully and intentionally.
(iii) If X plants a listening-in device in Y’s house and listens to Y’s private conversations. X commits the crime of ____________.
(iv) Incest is the unlawful and intentional sexual intercourse between male and female persons who are prohibited from marrying each other because they are related within the prohibited degrees of__________, ______________ or ____________. (Note there are three places where words are missing.)
(v) For the crime of fraud to be committed, an intention to ________ is required as opposed to mere intention to ________________.

(10)

(i) Good name; reputation
(ii) Deprivation; bodily freedom
(iii) Crimen iniuria
(iv) Affinity, consanguination; blood
(v) Defraud; deceive
Fill in the missing words:

(i) Child stealing is merely a form of the crime of ____________
(ii) Arson cannot be committed in respect of _______ property.
(iii) Apart from contravening section 14(1)(a) of the Sexual offences Act 23 of 1957, a male who has sexual intercourse with a girl under the age of twelve also commits the crime of _____________.
(iv) To spy on someone who is undressing amounts to the crime of _________.

(i) Kidnapping
(ii) Movable
(iii) Rape
(iv) Crimen iniuria

Fill in the missing words or phrases:

(i) The act required for the crime of theft consists in an act of _____________________________.
(ii) Theft can be committed in a variety of ways. It is possible to distinguish between the following three different forms of theft:

(iii) Theft is a continuing crime. That means the commission of the crime continues for as long as the stolen property remains in the __________ of the thief.
(iv) Theft of money in the form of credit amounts to theft of ____________ property.
(v) The misrepresentation in fraud must refer to some existing state of affairs or to some past event but not to some ____________.
(vi) The prejudice required for the crime of fraud may either be ________ prejudice or __________ prejudice.
(vii) Malicious injury to property consists in unlawfully and intentionally damaging property belonging to ____________ or damaging one’s own insured property with the intention of _________________.
(viii) Arson can only be committed in respect of _____________ property.

(i) Appropriation
(ii) Removal of property; embezzlement and arrogation of possession
(iii) possession
(iv) Incorporeal
(v) future event
(vi) actual or potential prejudice
(vii) somebody else...claiming the value of property of the insurer
(viii) immovable
CASE LAW QUESTIONS:

Discuss one of the following decisions.

Davies 1956 (3) SA 52 (A) – attempt to commit the impossible (criminal abortion). Davies is the authoritative case on attempt to commit the impossible. The court held that it is immaterial whether the impossibility of achieving the desired result was attributable to the wrong means employed by X, or due to the fact that the object in respect of which the act is committed is of such a nature that the crime can never be committed in respect of it. In cases of attempt to commit the impossible the test according to this decision is therefore subjective, and not objective. Committing of a so-called “putative crime” is therefore not a punishable attempt.

Discuss ONE of the following cases

(i) Williams 1980 (1) SA 60 (T)
(ii) Lungile 1999 (2) SA 597 (A)
(iii) Nkosiinyana 1966 (4) SA 655 (A)

You must mention briefly

(i) Facts of the case
(ii) The legal question to be answered by the court
(iii) The decision of the court
(iv) Reason for that decision.

Discuss briefly (only one paragraph) the ratio decidendi of ONE of the following decisions.

(i) Nkosiinyana 1966 (4) SA 655 (A)
(ii) Heyne 1956 (3) SA 604 (A)
(iii) Sibiya 1955 (4) SA 247 (A)

Nkosiinyana: In order to be convicted of incitement, it is not necessary to prove an initial unwillingness on the part of the person who was incited and who has overcome by argument, persuasion or coercing. Therefore, incitement can be committed even in respect of a police trap. An inciter is somebody who reaches and seeks to influence the mind of another towards the commission of the crime. It is immaterial whether the other person is susceptible to the persuasion.

Heyne: The element of prejudice in the crime of fraud only requires potential prejudice. This means that the false statement must involve some risk of harm which need not be financial or proprietary to some person.

Sibiya: There is uncertainty whether the conduct described in Roman law as furtum usus (the temporary use of another’s things without the intention of permanently depriving the owner) was also punishable as theft in Roman-Dutch law. Therefore such conduct is no longer punishable as theft in our law. The requirement in English law that X must have the intention to deprive the owner of his property is part of South African law.
This requirement also implies that the mere temporary use of another’s property does not amount to theft

IDENTIFY THE SPECIFIC CRIMES:

Merely state, without a discussion, the legal interest protected by each of the following crimes:

(i) Public violence
(ii) Criminal defamation
(iii) Kidnapping
(iv) Abduction

(i) Public peace and order
(ii) Reputation of a person
(iii) Freedom of movement of a person.
(iv) Rights of a parent to consent to marriage of their minor children as well as to exercise control over where they stay.

Name the crimes that X commits in the following instances:

(i) X threatens Y that he will tell Y’s husband that she (Y) is having an affair with him (X) unless she gives him R20 000. Y is afraid and gives X the money.
(ii) X, a prison warden tells Z, a prisoner, that he will help him escape if he (Z) pays him R5 000 once he is out of prison.
(iii) X, a policeman, forces Y, a suspect, to drink his (Y’s) own urine.
(iv) X lays a false criminal charge against Y at a police station.
(v) X tells Y that he will stab her with a knife if she does not hand over her purse. Y, who is terrified, runs away without handing over the purse.
(vi) X breaks a window of a house with the intention to enter the house and steal inside but is apprehended before actually entering the house.
(vii) X exposes his private parts to Y (a 30-year-old woman) in the street without Y’s consent.
(viii) X keeps cocaine in his house, not to use for himself but to give to his friends when he entertains them.

(i) Extortion
(ii) Corruption
(iii) Assault
(iv) Defeating/obstructing the course of justice
(v) Robbery
(vi) Breaking and entering
(vii) Crimen Iniuria
(viii) Use/possession of drugs
Multiple Choice:

Question 1

(i) If Z bribes X to murder Y, and X in fact murders Y, Z is known as a direct perpetrator.
(ii) In applying the common purpose doctrine, a finding that a person acted in common purpose with another person can only be made if there is proof of a prior conspiracy between the two persons.
(iii) An accessory after the fact is not a participant to the crime, because he did not further the commission of the crime.

(1) Only statement (i) is correct.
(2) Only statements (i) and (ii) are correct.
(3) Only statement (iii) is correct.
(4) Only statements (ii) and (iii) are correct.
(5) Only statements (i) and (iii) are correct.

Question 2

(i) In Davies 1956 (3) the Appeal Court held that the commission of a so-called putative crime is nevertheless punishable as attempt.
(ii) Two or more people can be convicted of conspiracy only if there is proof that they were in communication with each other.
(iii) If X voluntarily withdraws from his or her criminal conduct at a stage before his or her conduct amounts to an act of consummation, he or she is guilty of attempt.

(1) Only statement (i) is correct.
(2) Only statements (ii) and (iii) are correct.
(3) Only statements (i) and (iii) are correct.
(4) Only statement (iii) is correct.
(5) Only statement (i) is correct.

Question 3

(i) Public violence can only be committed in a public place.
(ii) The crime of common-law perjury can only be committed if the particular statement is made orally.
(iii) If X attempts to induce Y, a witness in a court case to give false evidence in court, X’s conduct may amount to committing the crime of defeating or obstructing the course of justice.

(1) Only statements (i) and (iii) are correct.
(2) Only statements (i) and (iii) are correct.
(3) Only statement (ii) is correct.
(4) Not one of these statements are correct
(5) Only statement (iii) is correct.
Question 4

(i) X may be guilty of corruption even if he or she only makes an offer to Y to give Y an improper benefit (assuming that X has an intention required for corruption).

(ii) In order to prove the requirements of the act in the crime of possession of a drug, it is sufficient for the prosecution to prove either that X had exercised control over the drug as if he or she were the owner, or that he or she had exercised control over it on behalf of somebody else.

(iii) If X buys a dagga cigarette from Y in order to smoke it him-or herself, he or she commits an act in connection with the sale of dagga and is accordingly guilty of dealing in drugs.

(1) Only statement (i) is correct
(2) Only statements (i) and (ii) are correct
(3) Only statements (ii) and (iii) are correct
(4) Only statement (ii) is correct
(5) Only statements (i) and (iii) are correct.

Question 5

(i) The crime of unlawfully possessing a weapon is defined by the legislature in such a way that X commits the crime only if he or she exercises control over the weapon with the intention of possessing it as an owner for his or her own benefit.

(ii) Negligence is a sufficient form of culpability in the crime of unlawfully possessing an arm.

(iii) If a female commits an indecent act with an 18-year-old boy she renders herself guilty of contravening a provision of the Sexual Offences Act 23 of 1957.

(1) Only statement (iii) is correct.
(2) Only statements (i) and (iii) are correct.
(3) Only statements (i) and (ii) are correct.
(4) Only statement (ii) is correct.
(5) Only statement (i) is correct.
Question 6

(i) In order to be convicted of common-law abduction, the prosecution must prove that X in fact married the minor or had sexual intercourse with her.
(ii) Common-law abduction is only committed if the removal of the minor takes place violently.
(iii) Common-law abduction can also be committed in respect of a male (as opposed to a female) minor.

(1) Only statement (i) is correct.
(2) Only statements (i) and (ii) are correct.
(3) Only statement (iii) is correct.
(4) Only statements (i) and (iii) are correct.
(5) Not one of these statements is correct.

Question 7

(i) It is quite possible for a person to render him-or herself guilty of contempt of court even if he or she did not have culpability in the form of intention, but only in the form of negligence.
(ii) A person can be convicted of assault with the intent to do grievous bodily harm only if he or she had indeed inflicted grievous bodily harm on the complainant.
(iii) If X, a male, intentionally puts his hand on the breast of Y, a female, without her consent, but without injuring her, he may render himself guilty of indecent assault.

(1) Only statement (iii) is correct.
(2) Only statements (i) and (iii) is correct.
(3) Only statement (ii) is incorrect.
(4) Only statements (i) and (ii) are correct.
(5) Only statements (ii) and (iii) are correct.

Question 8

(i) If a male, X, secretly watches a female, Y, while she is undressing, he can be convicted of crimen iniuria even if, at the time she was undressing, Y was not even aware that someone was watching her.
(ii) If X plants a bugging device in Y’s flat and listens to Y’s conversations without Y’s consent, X can be convicted of crimen iniuría only if the conversation which X overhears contains something scandalous or improper.
(iii) Arson can only be committed in respect of immovable property.

(1) All these statements are correct.
(2) Only statement (iii) is correct.
(3) Only statements (i) and (ii) are correct.
(4) Only statements (i) and (iii) are correct.
(5) Only statements (ii) and (iii) are correct.

Question 9

(i) The reason the word “malicious” appears in the crime “malicious injury to property” is that this crime can be committed only if X had an evil motive when he damaged the property.
(ii) For the purpose of the crime of forgery a document is deemed to be forged if it contains an untrue statement.
(iii) A person may only be convicted of fraud if it is proved that the person to whom he or she had made the misrepresentation was in fact misled by the misrepresentation.

(1) Only statement (ii) is correct.
(2) Only statement (iii) is correct.
(3) Only statements (i) and (ii) are correct.
(4) Not one of these statements is correct.
(5) Only statements (i) and (iii) are correct.

Question 10

(i) The threat of violence in robbery may either be express or implied.
(ii) In robbery there must be a causal link between the application of violence and the acquisition of the property.
(iii) For the conviction of fraud a causal link between the misrepresentation and the prejudice is not required.

(1) Only statement (i) is correct.
(2) Only statement (iii) is correct.
(3) All three statements are correct.
(4) Only statements (i) and (ii) are correct.
(5) Only statements (i) and (iii) are correct.

Question 11

(a) An indirect perpetrator is a person who makes use of somebody else to commit a crime.
(b) Williams 1980 (1) SA 60 (A) is authority for the point of view that a person may be convicted as an accomplice to the crime of murder.
(c) A “joiner in” is a person who actively associated himself with the common purpose of others (to kill Y) at a time before the lethal wound had been inflicted upon Y.

(1) Only statement (a) is correct.
Question 12

(a) For a conspiracy to be punishable, an agreement between at least two persons to commit a crime is required.
(b) The purpose of the prohibition of the incitement to commit a crime is to discourage people from seeking to influence others to commit crimes.
(c) The public violence can be committed by an individual acting alone.

(1) Only statement (a) is correct.
(2) Only statement (a) and (c) are correct.
(3) Only statements (a) and (b) are correct.
(4) Only statements (b) and (c) are correct.
(5) Only statement (b) is correct.

Question 13

(a) The crime of common-law perjury is only committed if the false declaration is made in the course of legal proceedings.
(b) Laying a false criminal charge against another may amount to the crime of defeating or obstructing the course of justice. (or attempting to do so)
(c) Fair comment on the outcome of a case or on the administration of justice in general does not constitute contempt of court.

(1) All these statements are correct.
(2) Only statements (a) and (b) are correct.
(3) Only statements (b) and (c) are correct.
(4) Only statement (a) is correct
(5) Only statement (a) and (c) are correct.

Question 14

(a) Where an editor of a newspaper is charged with the contempt of court on the ground of having publishes information in his newspaper concerning a pending case which tends to influence the outcome of the case, it is sufficient if the state proves culpability in the form of negligence.
(b) Unfair criticism of the South African Police Service by a newspaper reporter may amount to contempt of court.
(c) The reason for the existence of the crime of contempt of court is to protect the dignity of an individual.

(1) Only statement (b) is correct.
Question 15

(a) The crime of extortion can only be committed by a public official.
(b) The benefit in extortion is limited to patrimonial benefit.
(c) The crime of extortion is completed the moment X intentionally exerts pressure on Y to hand over a benefit to him, irrespective of whether X has received the benefit or not.

(1) Only statement (c) is correct.
(2) Only statements (b) and (c) are correct.
(3) Only statement (a) is correct.
(4) Only statement (b) is correct.
(5) None of these statements are correct.

Question 16

(a) If X obtains drugs for her own use, she cannot be convicted of the crime known as “dealing in drugs”.
(b) Culpability in the form of intention is required for the offence of “dealing in drugs”.
(c) Corruption in its active form is completed only once X has given the benefit to another.

(1) Only statement (a) is correct.
(2) Only statements (a) and (b) are correct.
(3) All of these statements are correct.
(4) Only statements (a) and (c) are correct.
(5) Only statements (b) and (c) are correct.

Question 17

(a) A husband may not be convicted of raping his wife.
(b) If X, a twenty-two-year-old male, exposes himself indecently in front of a 13-year-old schoolgirl he may be convicted of a contravention of section 14 of the Sexual Offences Act 23 of 1957.
(c) The crime of common-law abduction can only be committed by a male person.

(1) Only statement (b) is correct.
(2) Only statement (c) is correct.
(3) Only statement (a) is correct.
(4) Only statements (a) and (b) are correct.
(5) None of these statements are correct.
Question 18

(a) In A 1993 (1) SA 600 (A) the court held that because urine is not a poisonous or dangerous substance, X cannot be convicted of assault if he forces Y to drink his own urine.
(b) The crime of indecent assault cannot be committed by a female.
(c) X may only be convicted of assault with the intent to do grievous bodily harm if the victim had in fact been seriously injured.

(1) Only statement (a) is correct.
(2) Only statement (b) is correct.
(3) Only statement (c) is correct.
(4) None of these statements is correct.
(5) Only statements (a) and (c) are correct.

Question 19

(a) A person cannot be convicted of theft in respect of property belonging to him-herself.
(b) An intention to require a benefit is a requirement for the crime of theft.
(c) To listen to another person’s private telephone conversations by means of an electronic bugging device amounts to the crime of criminal defamation.

(1) Only statement (b) is correct.
(2) Only statement (c) is correct.
(3) Only statement (a) is correct.
(4) None of these statements are correct.
(5) Only statements (a) and (b) are correct.

Question 20

(a) It is not required for robbery that the property should necessarily be on the person of the victim or in his presence when the violence takes place.
(b) The misrepresentation required for the crime of fraud may consist in an omission.
(c) If X breaks into motor car with the intent to steal a car radio, he may be convicted of the crime of housebreaking with intent to commit a crime.

(1) Only statements (a) and (c) are correct.
(2) Only statements (b) and (c) are correct.
(3) Only statement (c) is correct.
(4) Only statements (a) and (b) are correct.
(5) All of these statements are correct.
Question 21

(a) An accomplice is a participant.
(b) An indirect perpetrator is regarded as an accomplice because he does not comply with all the requirements for liability set out in the definition of the crime.
(c) The liability of the accessory after the fact is accessory in character, but not that of an accomplice.

(1) Only statement (a) is correct.
(2) Only statement (b) is correct.
(3) Only statement (c) is correct.
(4) Only statements (a) and (b) are correct.
(5) Only statements (a) and (c) are correct.

Question 22

(a) Schoombie 1945 AD 541, the Appeal Court confirmed X’s conviction of (completed) arson on the basis that X’s act qualified as an act of execution or consummation.
(b) In South African law, a putative crime is not punishable.
(c) Any person, who joins an organization with the declared purpose of committing a crime or crimes whilst aware of its unlawful aims, commits conspiracy.

(1) Only statements (a) and (c) are correct.
(2) Only statements (a) and (b) are correct.
(3) Only statements (b) and (c) are correct.
(4) Only statement (b) is correct.
(5) All the statements are correct.

Question 23

(a) A common purpose of disturbing the public peace and order is required for the crime of public violence.
(b) It is possible to convict a person of perjury at common law if, under oath and in the course of a legal proceeding, he speaks the truth while believing that he is telling a lie.
(c) It is not a requirement for the crime of defeating the course of justice that the case must be pending.

(1) Only statement (a) is correct.
(2) Only statement (c) is correct.
(3) Only statements (a) and (b) are correct.
(4) Only statements (a) and (c) are correct.
(5) All the statements are correct.
Question 24

(a) An accessory after the fact is not a participant, because she does not further the commission of the crime.
(b) It was held in Williams 1980 (1) SA 60 (A) that a person cannot be convicted as an accomplice to murder.
(c) Participants are divided into two groups, namely perpetrators and accomplices.

(1) Only statements (a) and (b) are correct.
(2) Only statement (b) is correct.
(3) Only statement (c) is correct.
(4) Only statements (b) and (c) are correct.
(5) Only statements (a) and (c) are correct.

Question 25

(a) A person may be convicted of incitement only if there is proof that he persuaded the incitee to commit the crime.
(b) In order to be convicted of conspiracy, the parties must expressly agree. A mere tacit agreement is not sufficient.
(c) The crime of public violence can be committed even if there is no actual disturbance of public peace and order.

(1) Only statements (a) and (c) are correct.
(2) Only statement (b) is correct.
(3) Only statement (c) is correct.
(4) Only statements (a) and (b) are correct.
(5) Only statements (b) and (c) are correct.

Question 26

(a) In the crime of corruption, the benefit must be of a patrimonial nature.
(b) Corruption in its active form is completed only once X has given the benefit to another.
(c) Incest is no longer a crime in our law.

(1) Only statement (a) is correctly.
(2) Only statement (c) is correct.
(3) Only statements (a) and (c) are correct.
(4) All these statements are correct.
(5) Not one of theses statements are correct.
Question 27

(a) An accomplice is a participant.
(b) An indirect perpetrator is regarded as an accomplice because he does not comply with all the requirements for liability set out in the definition of the crime.
(c) The liability of the accessory after the fact is accessory in character, but not that of the accomplice.

(1) Only statement (a) is correct.
(2) Only statement (b) is correct.
(3) Only statement (c) is correct.
(4) Only statements (a) and (b) are correct.
(5) Only statements (a) and (c) are correct.

Question 28

(a) In South African law, a putative crime is not punishable.
(b) A putative crime is a crime which exists, but which X believes not to exist.
(c) In Schoombie 1945 AD 541, the Appeal Court confirmed X’s conviction of (completed) arson on the basis that X’s act qualified as an act of execution or consummation.

(1) Only statement (a) is correct.
(2) Only statements (a) and (b) are correct.
(3) Only statements (a) and (c) are correct.
(4) Only statement (c) is correct.
(5) None of these statements is correct.

Question 29

(a) A common purpose of disturbing the public peace and order is required for the crime of public violence.
(b) It is not a requirement for the crime of defeating or obstructing the course of justice that a case must be pending.
(c) It is possible to convict a person of perjury at common law if, under oath and in the course of a legal proceeding, he speaks the truth while believing that he is telling a lie.

(1) Only statement (a) is correct.
(2) Only statement (b) is correct.
(3) Only statements (a) and (b) are correct.
(4) Only statement (c) is correct.
(5) Only statements (a) and (c) are correct.
Question 30

(a) Only a declaration that is made under oath can lead to a conviction of perjury.
(b) X can be convicted of contempt of court if he unlawfully and intentionally falsely pretends to be an officer of the court, like an advocate or attorney.
(c) A reporter may be convicted of contempt of court if a reasonable person in his position could foresee that the information which he publishes might deal with a pending case.

(1) Only statement (a) is correct.
(2) Only statement (b) is correct.
(3) Only statement (c) is correct.
(4) Only statements (a) and (b) are correct.
(5) Only statements (b) and (c) are correct.

Question 31

(a) In Williams 1980 (1) SA 60 (A) the court held that it is not possible to be an accomplice to murder.
(b) Attempted assault is possible.
(c) If X is charged with murder, but it cannot be proved that he had the necessary intention to murder, he will invariably be convicted of culpable homicide.

(1) Only statement (a) is correct.
(2) Only statements (b) and (c) are correct.
(3) Only statements (a) and (b) are correct.
(4) Only statement (b) is correct.
(5) Only statements (a) and (c) are correct.

Question 32

(a) In Van Zyl 1993 (1) SACR 338 (C) the court held that the offence of pointing of an arm is committed only if the arm is pointed directly at the particular person in such a way that, if it were discharged, the bullet would strike that person.
(b) A person below the age of 16 years may possess an arm without a license with prior consent of the holder of a license to possess such firearm.
(c) It is not possible to convict X of robbery unless the property was on the victim’s person.

(1) Only statements (a) and (b) are correct.
(2) Only statements (b) and (c) are correct.
(3) Only statement (a) is correct.
(4) Only statement (b) is correct.
(5) Only statement (c) is correct.
Question 33

(a) Spitting in someone’s face can amount to both assault and crimen iniuria.
(b) X can be convicted of kidnapping if he unlawfully and intentionally deprives Y of her freedom of movement by locking her up in her own bathroom.
(c) X will be guilty of statutory abduction if he abducts a minor with the intention to marry her.

(1) Only statement (a) is correct.
(2) Only statement (b) is correct.
(3) Only statement (c) is correct.
(4) Only statements (a) and (b) are correct.
(5) All of these statements are correct.

Question 34

(a) If a moveable, corporeal thing is set on fire unlawfully and intentionally, it amounts to arson.
(b) Every case of theft by false pretences involves fraud, but every case of fraud does not involve theft by false pretences.
(c) It is required for the crime of fraud that there is a causal connection between the misrepresentation and the prejudice.

(1) Only statement (a) is correct.
(2) Only statement (b) is correct.
(3) Only statements (a) and (b) are correct.
(4) Only statements (a) and (c) are correct.
(5) None of these statements is correct.

Question 35

(a) For the purposes of the offence of unlawfully possessing drugs in contravention of section 4 of the Drugs and Drugs Trafficking Act 140 of 1992, to “possess” a drug means to possess the drug in the ordinary juridical sense of the word, or to keep, store or have in custody or under control or supervision such drug.
(b) For possession of a dangerous or undesirable dependence-producing substance (such as dagga, heroin or mandrax), a court may impose any fine it deems fit to impose, or imprisonment for a period not exceeding 15 years, or both such fine and such imprisonment.
(c) In the case of Solomon 1986 (3) SA 705 (A) the Appeal Court held that a person who buys drugs for her own use does not commit an act amounting to dealing in drugs.

(1) Only statement (a) is correct.
(2) Only statement (b) is correct.
(3) Only statement (c) is correct.
(4) None of these statements is correct.
(5) All these statements are correct.
Question 36

(a) Proof of sexual intercourse is required for a conviction of bigamy.
(b) If X is charged with contravening section 14(1) of the Sexual Offences Act 23 of 1957, which prohibits sexual intercourse with a girl under the age of 16 years, consent by the girl is not a defence; unless the girl led X to believe she was above the age of 16.
(c) The crime of extortion is completed only once the benefit is handed over.

(1) Only statement (a) is correct.
(2) Only statements (a) and (b) are correct.
(3) Only statement (b) is correct.
(4) Only statements (b) and (c) are correct.
(5) None of these statements are correct.

Question 37

(a) A person may only be convicted of the crime of murder if he/she committed the crime with his/her own hands or body.
(b) The existence of a common purpose between two or more participants can only be proved on the basis of an expressed or implied prior agreement to commit an offence.
(c) If X, (a woman) ties Z (another woman) to a bed to make it possible for Y (a man) to rape Z, and Y in actual fact rapes Z, X may be convicted as a perpetrator of the crime of rape.

(1) Only statement (a) is correct.
(2) Only statement (b) is correct.
(3) Only statements (a) and (c) are correct.
(4) None of the statements is correct.
(5) Only statement (c) is correct.

Question 38

(a) In Davies 1956 (3) SA 52 (A) the Appeal Court held that the commission of a so-called putative crime is nevertheless punishable as attempt.
(b) In order to be convicted of an attempt to commit a specific crime, negligence is a sufficient form of culpability.
(c) The act in the crime of conspiracy consists in the entering into an agreement to commit a crime or crimes.

(1) Only statement (a) is correct.
(2) Only statement (c) is correct.
(3) Only statements (a) and (c) are correct.
(4) Only statements (b) and (c) are correct.
(5) None of these statements is correct.
Question 39

(a) X ought to be convicted of incitement even if there is proof that the crime that he incited Y to commit has indeed been committed.
(b) The crime of common-law perjury can only be committed if the particular statement is made orally.
(c) In statutory perjury the declaration must be made in the course of a legal proceeding.

(1) None of these statements is correct.
(2) Only statement (b) is correct.
(3) Only statements (a) and (c) are correct.
(4) Only statement (c) is correct.
(5) Only statement (a) is correct.

Question 40

(a) If X persuades Y, a witness in a trial, to give false evidence in court, X may be convicted of the crime of defeating or obstructing the course of justice.
(b) Laying a false criminal charge at the police against another person does not constitute the crime of defeating or obstructing the course of justice (or an attempt to commit it).
(c) Contempt of court in facie curiae is punished solely to protect the dignity of the individual judicial officer who presides in the case.

(1) Only statement (c) is correct.
(2) Only statement (a) is correct.
(3) All the statements are correct.
(4) Only statement (b) is correct.
(5) Only statements (a) and (b) are correct.

Question 41

(a) X cannot be convicted of the offence of corruption created in section 3 of the Prevention and Combating of Corrupt Activities Act 12 of 2004 if he/she had merely agreed to accept gratification unlawfully in the future.
(b) If X is charged with corruption in terms of the abovementioned provision (section 3 of Act 12 of 2004) and it appears at the trial that X had given gratification to Y in the belief that Y will give him a passport, but that Y is in actual fact not entitled to issue passports, this fact affords X a defence.
(c) A person used as a police trap does not act unlawfully if he/she agrees to receive gratification from another person in order to trap that person into committing the crime of corruption.

(1) Only statement (a) is correct.
(2) Only statements (b) and (c) are correct.
(3) Only statements (a) and (c) are correct.
Question 42

(a) A person in a position of authority who knows or who ought reasonably to have known that certain crimes have been committed in terms of the Prevention and Combating of Corrupt Activities Act 12 of 2004 commits a crime if he/she fails to report this to a police officer.

(b) The benefit in extortion is limited to patrimonial benefit.

(c) The crime of extortion is completed the moment X intentionally exerts pressure on Y to hand over a benefit to him, irrespective of whether X has received the benefit or not.

(1) Only statement (a) is correct.
(2) None of the statements is correct.
(3) Only statements (a) and (b) are correct.
(4) Only statement (b) is correct.
(5) Only statement (c) is correct.

Question 43

(a) If X exercises control over mandrax tablets on behalf of Y but has no intention of using the drugs personally, X cannot be convicted of the crime known as Abuse or possession of drugs in terms of section 4 of the Drugs and Drugs Trafficking Act 140 of 1992.

(b) In Prince v President, Cape Law Society 2002 (2) SA 794 (CC) the Constitutional Court ruled that section 4 of Act 140 of 1992 (which criminalises the possession of drugs) is unconstitutional because Rastafari who use and possess dagga only for religious purposes, are also targeted in terms of this provision.

(c) Failing to report to the police that one is aware that somebody else possesses a firearm illegally, amounts to a crime in terms of the Firearms Control Act 60 of 2000.

(1) Only statement (a) is correct.
(2) Only statement (c) is correct.
(3) Only statements (a) and (c) are correct.
(4) Only statement (b) is correct.
(5) Only statements (b) and (c) are correct.

Question 44

(a) If X, a 20-year-old man, indecently exposes himself in front of a 13-year-old girl, he may be convicted of a contravention of section 14 of the Sexual Offences Act 23 of 1957.

(b) If X, a 20-year-old man, has sexual intercourse with a girl below the age of 12, he is guilty of rape irrespective of whether he was under the impression that the girl had consented to intercourse.
(c) If X, a 21-year-old man, has sexual intercourse with a 15-year-old prostitute with her consent, he commits no offence.

(1) Only statements (a) and (b) are correct.
(2) None of the statements is correct.
(3) Only statement (a) is correct.
(4) Only statement (b) is correct.
(5) Only statements (b) and (c) are correct.

Question 45

(a) If X takes Y, a minor girl, to his house, has sexual intercourse with her and immediately thereafter takes her home, he may be guilty of the crime of common law abduction.

(b) Assault may be committed even if there is no physical contact with or impact on the victim's body.

(c) For a conviction of assault with the intent to cause grievous bodily harm, it is required that the victim had in actual fact suffered grievous bodily harm.

(1) Only statement (a) is correct.
(2) Only statement (b) is correct.
(3) Only statements (a) and (b) are correct.
(4) None of these statements is correct.
(5) Only statement (c) is correct.

Question 46

(a) If X secretly watches his neighbour undressing, he may be convicted of criminal defamation.

(b) The crime of crimen iniuria involves some measure of sexual impropriety.

(c) The crime of theft by false pretences completely overlaps with the crime of fraud.

(1) Only statement (a) is correct.
(2) Only statements (a) and (b) are correct.
(3) Only statement (c) is correct.
(4) Only statements (a) and (c) are correct.
(5) Only statements (b) and (c) are correct.

Question 47

(a) An indirect perpetrator is a person who makes use of somebody else to commit a crime.

(b) Williams 1980 (1) SA 60 (A) is authority for the point of view that a person may be convicted as an accomplice to the crime of murder.

(c) A “joiner in” is a person who actively associated himself with the common purpose of others (to kill Y) at a time before the lethal wound had been inflicted upon Y.
Question 48

(a) For a conspiracy to be punishable, an agreement between at least two persons to commit a crime is required.
(b) The purpose of the prohibition of incitement to commit a crime is to discourage people from seeking to influence others to commit crimes.
(c) The crime of public violence can be committed by an individual acting alone.

(1) Only statement (a) is correct.
(2) Only statements (a) and (b) are correct.
(3) Only statements (a) and (c) are correct.
(4) Only statement (b) is correct.
(5) All of these statements are correct.

Question 49

(a) The crime of common-law perjury is only committed if the false declaration is made in the course of a legal proceeding.
(b) Laying a false criminal charge against another may amount to the crime of defeating or obstructing the course of justice (or attempting to do so).
(c) Fair comment on the outcome of a case or on the administration of justice in general does not constitute contempt of court.

(1) All these statements are correct.
(2) Only statements (a) and (b) are correct.
(3) Only statements (b) and (c) are correct.
(4) Only statement (a) is correct.
(5) Only statements (a) and (c) are correct.

Question 50

(a) Where an editor of a newspaper is charged with contempt of court on the ground of having published information in his newspaper concerning a pending case which tends to influence the outcome of the case, it is sufficient if the state proves culpability in the form of negligence.
(b) Unfair criticism of the South African Police Services by a newspaper reporter may amount to contempt of court.
(c) The reason for the existence of the crime of contempt of court is to protect the dignity of an individual.

(1) Only statement (b) is correct.
(2) Only statement (c) is correct.
(3) Only statement (a) is correct.
(4) Only statements (a) and (b) are correct.
(5) None of these statements is correct.

Question 51

(a) The crime of extortion can only be committed by a public official.
(b) The benefit in extortion is limited to patrimonial benefit.
(c) The crime of extortion is completed the moment X intentionally exerts pressure on Y to hand over a benefit to him, irrespective of whether X has received the benefit or not.

(1) Only statement (c) is correct.
(2) Only statements (b) and (c) are correct.
(3) Only statement (a) is correct.
(4) Only statement (b) is correct.
(5) None of these statements is correct.

Question 52

(a) If X obtains drugs for her own personal use, she cannot be convicted of the crime known as “dealing in drugs”.
(b) Culpability in the form of intention is required for the offence of “dealing in drugs”.
(c) Corruption in its active form is completed only once X has given a benefit to another.

(1) Only statement (a) is correct.
(2) Only statements (a) and (b) are correct.
(3) All of these statements are correct.
(4) Only statements (a) and (c) are correct.
(5) Only statements (b) and (c) are correct.

Question 53

(a) A husband may not be convicted of raping his wife.
(b) If X, a twenty-two-year-old male, exposes himself indecently in front of a 13-year-old schoolgirl he may be convicted of a contravention of section 14 of the Sexual Offences Act 23 of 1957.
(c) The crime of common-law abduction can only be committed by a male person.

(1) Only statement (b) is correct.
(2) Only statement (c) is correct.
(3) Only statement (a) is correct.
(4) Only statements (a) and (b) are correct.
(5) None of these statements is correct.
Question 54

(a) In A 1993 (1) SA 600 (A) the court held that because urine is not a poisonous or dangerous substance, X cannot be convicted of assault if he forces Y to drink his own urine.
(b) The crime of indecent assault cannot be committed by a female.
(c) X may only be convicted of assault with the intent to do grievous bodily harm if the victim had in fact been seriously injured.

(1) Only statement (a) is correct.
(2) Only statement (b) is correct.
(3) Only statement (c) is correct.
(4) None of these statements is correct.
(5) Only statements (a) and (c) are correct.

Question 55

(a) A person cannot be convicted of theft in respect of property which belongs to him- or herself.
(b) An intention to acquire a benefit is a requirement for the crime of theft.
(c) To listen to another person’s private telephone conversations by means of an electronic bugging device amounts to the crime of criminal defamation.

(1) Only statement (b) is correct.
(2) Only statement (c) is correct.
(3) Only statement (a) is correct.
(4) None of these statements is correct.
(5) Only statements (a) and (b) are correct.

Question 56

(a) It is not required for robbery that the property should necessarily be on the person of the victim or in his presence when the violence takes place.
(b) The misrepresentation required for the crime of fraud may consist in an omission.
(c) If X breaks into a motor car with the intent to steal a car radio, he may be convicted of the crime of housebreaking with intent to commit a crime.

(1) Only statements (a) and (c) are correct.
(2) Only statements (b) and (c) are correct.
(3) Only statement (c) is correct.
(4) Only statements (a) and (b) are correct.
(5) All these statements are correct.